894. William Ellis Morris,[8] (Samuel W.,[7] Benjamin W.,[6] Samuel,[5] Anthony,[4] Anthony,[3] Anthony,[2] Anthony,[1]) eldest son of (Judge) Samuel W. and Anna (Ellis) Morris, was b. at Muncy, Pennsylvania, Jan. 29, 1812; d. suddenly of heart disease, at his residence, No. 1225 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Oct. 15, 1875, at 7.00 P. Thomas Burnside, a Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

William E. Morris chose the profession of a civil engineer and at the age of sixteen left his parents' home at Wellsboro', Pa., to take the lowest position in an engineering party upon the canals of Pennsylvania. He rose rapidly to the position of First Assistant Engineer of the West Branch Canal, and Engineer-in-Chief of the Bald Eagle Canal, and was appointed by Governor David R. Porter one of the State Engineers under the Canal Commissioners. He soon became eminent in his profession, and as an hydraulic engineer constructed feeders for the Union Canal, and also the great reservoirs at Hollidaysburg and Johnstown, which supplied the canals east and west of the Allegheny Mountains. He built the Spring Garden Water Works, in the City of Philadelphia, and improved the foundations of the Kensington Works. He also erected works, or made improvements at Norristown, Trenton, Easton, Doylestown, Bristol and Wilmington, Delaware.

In 1843 his attention was directed to railroads, and in January of that year, he was called to the Presidency of the Philadelphia, Germantown and Norristown Railroad; this position he resigned, after a term of ten years, to accept the greater responsibility as President of the Long Island Railroad. Here he remained ten years, till elected Vice-President and acting President of the New York and Harlem Railroad. He held this position one year, his health compelling his resignation, and he returned, in the spring of 1864, to his former home in Germantown, Pa.

During the remaining years of his life, he was constantly employed, even up to the hour of his death, as consulting engineer, in the construction and management of railroads, and in the erection of Water Works. Among the railroads were the Athens and Schenectady, the Rondout and Oswego (N. Y.), and the Vicksburg and Meridian (Miss.)

In June, 1875, he was nominated by the Franklin Institute, and appointed by the Mayor of the City of Philadelphia, one of a Commission of five experts, to report to Councils upon the question of the present and future water supply of the City.

Among his incidental avocations, Mr. Morris was accustomed in a private way, to contribute to the religious column of a weekly paper, selections from religious writers, and items from his own pen. Here is a little passage which occurs in the number of this periodical for Sept., 1875, which is headed "Be Natural": "Suppose you are different from all other men; suppose there is not another man in the world to countenance you in your individuality, just be what you are; God will own you; God will find a place for you. The less you aim yourself after men's judgment, the more simply you accept your nature as it is, and give it to God to work in it, and to do with it as seemeth good in His sight, there will in all probability be so much less of the leaven of the pharisees about you." This was William E. Morris. He was perfectly natural.

Mr. Solomon W. Roberts in addressing the Monthly Meeting at the Franklin Institute of the State of Pennsylvania, in connection with resolutions expressing its high appreciation of Mr. Morris's ability, remarked after he had reviewed his history:

"And now he is dead. On the afternoon of the day before he died, he visited the speaker, bearing in his hand the first complete copy of the Report of the Water Commission, which he had just obtained from the printing office.

"The interview was long, and Mr. Morris appeared to be perfectly well. In the evening of the next day, he fell dead while sitting at the tea-table, in his own house. He died without a struggle, and without uttering a word. It was emphatically sudden death, and so his long day's work is ended, and his record is made up. Of the old engineers of the State of Pennsylvania, how few remain, and how many have died within the last few years: John Edgar Thomson, Edward Miller, Edward F. Gay, and a number of others, and now William E. Morris, have passed to their eternal rest."

BISHOP OF OREGON

Co., Penna.; m. June 22, 1852, Hannah Rodney, dau. of Henry Fisher Rodney of Lewes, Del., and Mary, dau. of Robert Burton of Lewes, Del.

Benjamin Wistar Morris graduated at the General Theological Seminary in 1846, was made Deacon the same year, and ordained Priest 27th of April, 1847. He was Rector of St. Matthew's, Sunbury, Pa., for four years, and of St. David's, Manayunk, Philadelphia, for six years, when he became Assistant and subsequently Rector at St. Luke's, Germantown, Pa., remaining there until his elevation to the Episcopate. He was consecrated Missionary Bishop of Oregon and Washington Territory, Dec. 3, 1868. In 1880 his jurisdiction was divided, Washington being set apart as a separate See, while Bishop Morris remained in charge of the Diocese of Oregon. He received the degree of S. T. D. from Columbia in 1868, and also that of D. D. from the University of Pennsylvania in the same year.

In June, 1896, a grand "jubilee" service was held at Portland, Oregon, the occasion being the 50th anniversary of the ordination of Bishop Morris. The following is an account of the service as published in the "Churchman," July 18, 1896:—

"Bishop Morris' Jubilee Service."

"The eighth annual convention of the Diocese of Oregon began on Sunday, June 28, with a grand "jubilee" service, the occasion being the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of the beloved diocesan, the Rt. Rev. Benj. Wistar Morris, D. D.

"The jubilee service was a union of all the congregations in the city—and Trinity church was filled to its utmost capacity. At 8 o'clock the procession entered at the west door and proceeded up the main aisle, led by the vested choir, followed by the largest number of clergy perhaps, ever at one time assembled in this diocese, and supplemented with the very unusual sight, here in the far West, of four bishops—Talbot, of Wyoming; Wells, of Spokane; Barker, of Olympia, and the bishop of the diocese. After a hearty and inspiring service of prayer and praise, addresses were delivered by the visiting bishops.

"The Bishop of Spokane, the first speaker, grew eloquent as he sketched the early years of the bishop's work here in the 'pioneer days,' that preceded railroads and electric cars. He told of the many missionary trips they had taken together, through sparsely settled districts, the hardships of travel, the poor accommodations by night and day, and the dismal 'halls' and 'school-houses' where services were held, the bishop often doing the double duty of sexton and preacher. He said that his patient, untiring faith and energy had, under God, accomplished the magnificent results for the diocese, which it is now only necessary to look about and see on all sides.

"Bishop Barker of Olympia, followed in his usual direct and eloquent manner, with a few words, in which he conveyed the greetings of the diocese of Olympia to their 'once,' and still in the hearts of many, loved and honored bishop.

"Bishop Talbot was never apparently in a happier mood than that night. His face fairly beamed, as he spoke in his own inimitable way of the days when Bishop Morris's jurisdiction embraced the wilds of Idaho. He refuted, in a practical and humorous way, the idea prevalent among many, that a 'bishop has an easy time of it,' and closed with a loving and eloquent tribute to Bishop Morris's influence and work, his character and virtues, of which modesty was a most marked one.

"Before closing the service, Bishop Morris assured the congregation, that this occasion was in no sense one of his own seeking. It had all been done by the clergy and laity, and he could not prevent it. The offering was for 'The Bishop Morris Jubilee Endowment Fund for Diocesan Missions,' of which it might be well to say in explanation, that the committee in charge of the jubilee service, knowing well how averse the bishop is to anything in the way of testimonials of a personal character, decided at this time, to lay the foundation for a fund, for the future support of the missionary work in Oregon.

"Altogether, this jubilee service will ever be a memorable one. It was a worthy tribute, to a man who stands among the foremost in the long line of American Missionary Bishops; a man who has not only laid well material foundations, and built up lasting diocesan monuments, but one who—in this age of unrest and doubt and unbelief—has been true to his ordination vows, and loyal to the Church of his love and choice, and to the unchanging truth of its Divine Head. His first text, fifty years ago, was 'I am determined to know nothing among you save Jesus Christ, and Him crucified,' and he has abided by it—not one false note through all the years that have intervened.'"

Bishop Benjamin Wistar Morris and Hannah Rodney, his wife, had issue:—

2133. Samuel Wells Morris, b. March 16, 1854; d. April 1, 1854.

2134. Mary Rodney Morris, b. May 28, 1855; m. Jan. 29, 1880, Samuel Dickinson Adair.

2135. Henry Rodney Morris, b. Sept. 19, 1857; d. June 30, 1876.

Henry Rodney Morris was the first of the descendants of Anthony Morris to die, and be buried in Oregon, on the Pacific Coast.

On the afternoon of June 30, 1876, while preparations were being made in that far away western State for the Centennial Celebration of July 4, Henry Rodney Morris heard a loud cry for help on his father's premises. At the moment, he had little Roland Morris (the present lineal representative of the Morris family) in his arms, but quickly putting the infant down in the flower garden, he, who was about to die for two strange Irish laborers, and suddenly to win the Victor's Crown, ran to answer the call. A funeral notice written by his father, Bishop Morris, at the time, reads as follows:—

"In Portland, Oregon, June 30th, 1876, Henry Rodney Morris, eldest son of Bishop Morris, in his nineteenth year, lost his earthly life instantly, in the heroic, but vain attempt to rescue two other men from death in a cess-pool."

"God be merciful unto us and bless us: and show us the light of His countenance and be merciful unto us."

THE RODNEY FAMILY.

William Rodney (1652–1708) came from Bristol, England, to Philadelphia, soon after William Penn had settled Pennsylvania. He located himself at Lewes, on the Delaware, where in 1689, he was elected Sheriff of Sussex County. He removed to Dover, Kent County, Delaware, and in 1698–'9 he became a member of Assembly, and again in 1700–'4, serving as Speaker in the last year, when he was made a justice of the peace. In 1698–'9 he was a member of Wm. Penn's Council, and in 1707 was appointed a Justice of New Castle. His grandson, Cæsar Rodney (son of Cæsar), b. 1728; d. 1784; from 1755–'8 was High Sheriff of Kent County, and at the end of that period, was made a justice of the peace and judge of all the lower courts; in 1759 he was a Captain in the County Militia; in 1762–'3 he represented Kent County in the Assembly; he was Recorder in 1764, and Justice of the Peace 1764–'6, and in 1773 he was an Associate Justice; in 1774–'5–'6 he was elected to Congress; in 1775 he was appointed first a Colonel and afterwards a Brigadier-General of Delaware Militia; he was a signer of the Declaration of Independence; from 1776–1782 he was President of Delaware, and in 1783 was again chosen to Congress.

Judge Daniel Rodney (b. 1764; d. 1846) was the great-grandson of William Rodney, the "Emigrant." Daniel Rodney was Governor of Delaware from 1814 to 1817; he received the electoral vote of that State for Vice-President in 1821; he was elected to Congress, serving from 2nd Dec., 1822, till 3rd March, 1824, and was United States Senator from Delaware, 1826–'7.

The father of William Rodney, who came to this country in 1682, was William Rodney (1610–1699) of the Landed Gentry of England, and was seated at Hartsfield, in Somersetshire, where he died, and his mother was a daughter of Sir Thomas Cæsar, a Baron of the Exchequer, hence the name Cæsar as a "given name" in the American Rodney Family. Through several generations, the lineage may be traced to Sir Walter de Rodenai, the founder of the family in England, who came over in the service and retinue of the Empress Maud of Germany.

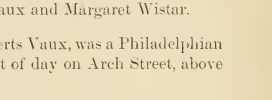
(Morris) Waln, b. 8th mo. 4th, 1814; d. 12th mo. 31st, 1895; m. March 12, 1840, Richard Vaux, b. Dec. 19, 1816; d. March 22, 1895; son of Roberts Vaux and Margaret Wistar.

Richard Vaux, the son of Roberts Vaux, was a Philadelphian by birth, having first seen the light of day on Arch Street, above Second, on December, 19, 1816. His grandfather was born in England, went to San Domingo and thence to Philadelphia, where Roberts Vaux was born. On the maternal side, the present Vaux family can trace their Philadelphia family ancestry from the time of Penn.



The father, Roberts Vaux, was a noted man in his day, particularly devoting himself to the study of physical and mental culture, and to him Richard Vaux owed his entire education. The father not only taught the son himself, but supervised the work of tutors especially selected by himself.

The younger man, after receiving a classical education in this way, elected to study law, and was accordingly placed in the office of William W. Meredith, being the first student of that distinguished lawyer. Application and mental ability stood the young law student in good stead, and having passed a creditable examination before George M. Dallas, William Rawle, Jacob Broom and Peter McCall, he was admitted to the bar April 15, 1837, although lacking eight months of legal age.

Apropos of Richard Vaux's early law practice, an amusing story is told. Like other young lawyers, the displaying of his plate as Attorney-at-Law, did not bring as many clients as could be desired, by a disciple of Coke and Blackstone, but one day there came a windfall. This took the form of a case involving the negotiation of a mortgage, and the transaction being done entirely through an agent, Richard Vaux was in complete ignorance of the personality of his client. He, however, after successfully disposing of the case in point, had assurance enough to send in an unusually large bill, which was promptly paid without comment. Encouraged by this stroke of good fortune, and elated by his success, the young attorney at once splurged out, and, purchasing a pair of horses, became the cynosure of all observers.

Mr. Vaux's mother, for whom he had the deepest love and veneration, attempted to expostulate with him for this reckless extravagance. She was of a beautiful and noble character, and her chiding was done in the mildest way. The young man, however, insisted that he was perfectly warranted in his expenditure, as he was getting along rapidly in his profession, and had just received an unusually large emolument for his legal services. "I know that, Richard," replied his mother calmly, "but thee must remember, thee will not always have thy old mother to pay thy fees."

Richard Vaux had pursued his legal career but a short time, when he received a note from the then Secretary of State, John Forsythe, asking him on what date he was going to start on a contemplated trip to Europe. Upon receiving a reply to this inquiry, the Secretary requested the young man to be the bearer of a package, intended for the American Legation in London. Mr. Vaux accepted the commission, and a short time after, fulfilled it, by handing the package to Andrew Stevenson, of Virginia, then United States Minister to England. Having withdrawn from the ministerial presence, Mr. Vaux was delivering some letters to Mrs. Stevenson, when the minister entered the room, and astonished the young man by saying: "Come down stairs, sir; I have made you Secretary of Legation, ad interim. One of the despatches that you have brought to this office, directs the Secretary to report to one of the Continental Courts, and you must fill the vacancy."

It was vain for the young man to protest; the honor was fairly thrust upon him, and he filled the official position, until the following year, when he was succeeded by Benjamin Rush.

Then followed a continental trip, during which the young Philadelphian impressed every one whom he met, by his conversation, his charm of manner, and his personal appearance. He returned to London, after an extended tour, and was then made Minister Stevenson's private secretary, a post he retained until 1839.

In English society, Mr. Vaux was made much of. His connection with the Legation, gave him the entrée into the most exclusive circles, and his home training, and natural gifts, caused him to shine as a social light. His father being a man of wealth, as well as culture, entertained largely, and Richard Vaux had the polish of a finished gentleman. In addition to these qualifications, he was gifted with an unusual flow of language, eloquence of diction, and was, in personal appearance, extremely handsome.

It was within one month after Mr. Vaux's entrance into London, that King William died, and the Princess Victoria was proclaimed Queen. As a member of the Legation, he witnessed all the accompanying ceremonial, paid his respects to the new Sovereign, attended her first reception, stood within one hundred feet of her, when she was formally crowned, and saw much of her afterwards, at the balls that followed.

When in Naples, through having diplomatic relations with the minister, Mr. Vaux attended a private family party, given by the Royal Family, and was honored by having a long conversation with the King, in reference to America.

While still connected with the American Legation, Mr. Vaux paid a visit to Dublin, and there was invited by Lady Clark, to a reception at the house of Daniel O'Connell. Thomas Moore was there, Moore, the author of "Lalla Rookh," the sweet singer of Irish melodies. Of this occasion, Mr. Vaux was never tired of telling. Moore was then an old man, with hair silvered by the frost of many winters, and when the young Philadelphian first caught sight of him, was standing in the centre of the room, surrounded by many people, and evidently the centre of attraction.

Mr. Vaux was at once introduced to the poet, and the latter with a frank, engaging smile, at once entered into conversation, and asked Mr. Vaux what was thought of him, and his books, in America. "Your name, Mr. Moore," responded the young diplomat, "is now a household word in America." This answer so pleased the Irish poet, that stimulated by a suggestion from one of the ladies present, he seated himself at the piano, and sang a number of his own songs, for the pleased Philadelphian, after which, he turned around, and said, "Mr. Vaux, your carriage is here, and mine is not; won't you drive me home?" Mr. Vaux at once accepted, and the two were companions in a ride replete with recollections of pleasant conversation.

Richard Vaux visited the great O'Connell, under far less pleasant circumstances, before he severed his connection with the Legation. O'Connell, then a member of Parliament, had given mortal offense to Mr. Stevenson, and the Secretary was dispatched with a challenge from the gallant Virginian. The challenge, instead of producing bloodshed, however, only gave rise to a prodigious amount of diplomatic correspondence, in order that international complications might not ensue, and eventually, the affair was amicably adjusted.

While in London, Mr. Vaux was offered the position of Secretary of Legation at St. Petersburg, and he accompanied the Hon. Mr. Maxey, who as representative of the United States, was sent to the Russian capital, charged with the organization of the American Embassy.

In 1839, Mr. Vaux returned voluntarily to America, and at once plunged into the political arena. He found on reaching Philadelphia, that he had been nominated by the Democrats of his district, for the Legislature, his residence at that time being the old Vaux homestead, on Arch Street below Twelfth. The Whig party had a large majority in this district, now embraced by the Ninth Ward, and his defeat was assured, before election day.

The father, Roberts Vaux, had taken a great interest in penalogy, and was indeed, the first to suggest, that the object of imprisoning criminals, should be reformation, rather than punishment, and to propose solitary confinement and humanitarian methods. In pursuance of this idea, he was instrumental in having the Eastern Penitentiary remodeled, on the plan of solitary confinement.

The son shared the father's views in this respect, and on Jan. 7, 1842, he was, like his father, appointed by the Supreme Court as Inspector of the Eastern Penitentiary. He was at once elected secretary of that body, and from that time, annually wrote the annual report of that institution. These reports are far more than a mere official tally of the work of the preceding year; they are veritable essays on the science of penalogy and are regarded as such, both in this country and abroad. Larger works devoted to the same subject, won Mr. Vaux the reputation of being one of the leading penalogists in the world.

When he practised law, it was usually in the criminal court. He was particularly earnest in his denunciation of circumstantial evidence.

Upon one occasion, it is told, he had need to use this denunciation in the defense of a client, and he supplemented it by illustrations. It was a piping hot day, and the court room was like an oven. Beads of perspiration stood upon the brows of the jurymen, and the Judge mopped his face with vigor and assiduity. The windows were wide open to catch every breath of air, and everybody was cross, hot, and miserable. Mr. Vaux first cautioned the jury, to beware of the danger of convicting a man on circumstantial evidence, and then having called their attention to an empty stove, a relic of winter, standing in one corner, caused a lighted candle to be shut up within it.

The candle light showed like fire through the stove door, and Mr. Vaux remarked: "Now, gentlemen, from trusting in your eyes, you might believe it to be a cold day, for you see a fire in the room." He also produced a thermometer, in which the mercury stood at zero, and passed it around the jury box for inspection, very careful scrutiny being required to see that the instrument was broken.

In March, 1840, Mr. Vaux was sent as a delegate to the convention that nominated Martin Van Buren for the Presidency.

The next step in Mr. Vaux's political career, was his appointment as Recorder of Philadelphia, Aug. 1, 1841, which office he retained until he resigned it, May 17, 1847. He filled the position for seven years with wonderful ability, integrity and attention to duty. During this period, Mr. Vaux published a legal work, under the title "Recorder's Decisions," that at once became a standard authority, and to-day is deeply prized by the legal profession. During Mr. Vaux's Recordership, it is handed down, that no decision rendered by him in that office, was ever reversed by the higher courts. In 1841, he was also elected Controller of the Public Schools, a post previously held by his father.

In 1842, 1845 and 1854, Richard Vaux was nominated for Mayor, but at each election he was defeated. Upon the day after the election in 1854, seizing the State House steps as a rostrum, he roared out defiance, and announced himself as a candidate once more.

His nomination of himself, was endorsed by the Democrats in 1856, and this time he was elected. Two years before, the city had been consolidated, and much of the work of framing laws for the government of the new municipality, devolved on Mayor Vaux. He insisted upon the Mayor being given the power to appoint all heads of departments, and thus be responsible for the entire municipal system. He proved so successful in organizing the police force, that his successor, a political opponent, retained its chief, and many of its lieutenants.

One of his customs was to stroll about, disguised in a great cloak and slouch hat, seeing that his police were attending to their duties. He also attended all night fires, and was always on hand, when any disturbance was to be quelled among the pugnacious firemen of that day. In 1858, he was chosen one of the directors of Girard College, succeeding Morton McMichael the following year, as President of the Board.

After the death of Samuel J. Randall, Mr. Vaux was selected as the Democratic candidate for Congressman from the Third District, and as the Republicans declared it inexpedient to nominate, he was elected by a plurality of 7954, the total vote being 8646. He took his seat on May 29, 1890, and his first speech, a brilliant defense of the Constitution, in reference to the holding of Federal elections, was the most notable speech, heard from a Pennsylvanian in the House, for years.

In Congress he achieved the distinction of having his old beaver hat, which was left on his desk, while he was in a cloak-room, counted as a "Representative present and voting," to make one of Speaker Reed's famous quorums.

But the time at length came, when this, "the most conspicuous and familiar figure that remained of Philadelphia's old-time public spirited citizens," was to pass away. Mr. Vaux's fatal illness was an acute form of indigestion to which aged persons are susceptible. On March 17, 1895, as President of the Prison Board, he received the Special Committee of the State Legislature appointed to report on the proposed removal of the Eastern Penitentiary, and spent fully two hours in showing the members about that large institution. After leaving the warm corridors of the prison, the cold air chilled the aged philanthropist. He arrived at his home, an hour later than it was his custom, and sat down to his dinner with a vigorous appetite. He ate very heartily, and overtaxed his powers of digestion to such a degree, that he complained of feeling badly afterwards, and remarked, that he thought he had been imprudent. After a transient improvement in health, his vital power seemed utterly to fail him, and he sank rapidly until his death, which took place at his city residence, at the southwest corner of Nineteenth and Chestnut Streets, on March 22, 1895. The transition from life to death with him, was like a child falling into a sleep. His eyes closed restfully, and even the doctors failed to distinguish the exact moment at which the final dissolution took place. The powers of life slipped away, like the ebbing of the tide, so silently and peaceably, that there was nothing to indicate the presence of death. At his bedside were his wife, his son J. Waln Vaux, his daughters Meta and Bessie Vaux, and Dr. J. Murray Cheston and Dr. James Tyson.

Mr. Vaux was a prominent Mason, and was for three years Grand Master of the State. He was accepted as an authority on all matters, and wrote a pamphlet of 350 pages of comments upon the proceedings of lodges throughout the world. He was also a member of the Philosophical Society and the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, and was several times President of the Philadelphia Club.

Personally Mr. Vaux was a thorough gentleman, in the truest sense of the word. Behind a mask of seeming indifference, he veiled the tenderest sentiments; he was the truest kind of a friend. A certain brusqueness of manner characterized him, but once known, he was sure to be loved.

On the coldest winter days he never wore an overcoat, nor in storms carried an umbrella, and with his long iron-gray locks, low-cut shoes and frock coat, with its long rolling collar, he was always a figure to command attention. He never attended a theatrical performance during all his life. When a boy he was fired by the descriptions he heard of the wonderful acting of Forrest in Metamora, and asked his father for money to visit the playhouse. His father offered him the money, but, while particular to mention that he did not begrudge the sum, made it plain that he disapproved of the theatre. Richard promised his father never to visit a theatre without the paternal permission, and believed himself in honor bound to keep his promise. Until a few years before his death, he never entered a street car, and it was his habit daily, to rise with the sun and take a cold plunge bath, even in the depth of winter. He was devoted to his home and family, and was never so happy as, when seated in his library, he could engage in conversation with an old-time friend.

Simple services marked the obsequies of Richard Vaux, which were conducted in St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal Church, followed by his interment at South Laurel Hill Cemetery, where a brief service was conducted, and the impressive Masonic rites were followed. One of the most notable gatherings of eminent citizens that ever congregated, assembled to pay the last tribute of respect, and several organizations were represented, including the Masonic Grand Lodge, a Lodge of Masons and of Odd Fellows, a delegation of the Philadelphia Club, a representation from Girard College, and the force of Overseers from the Eastern Penitentiary.

At a special meeting of the Philadelphia Bar held in the Supreme Court Room, March 26, 1895, and presided over by Chief Justice Sterrett, a Minute expressing the high esteem in which Mr. Vaux was held, was presented by the late George W. Biddle, Esq., and unanimously adopted.

Mr. Biddle then proceeded in an eloquent speech, to enlarge upon the characteristics and many virtues of his distinguished friend, which reached its climax in the peroration:—

"Gentlemen, I have stood side by side with this man for nearly seventy years, from early boyhood up, and literally to the day of his death; and when I make this retrospect, I am painfully impressed with how utterly evanescent, and transient, is everything in this world of ours. Sir David Wilkie tells us that, when he was rambling through the halls and corridors of a Spanish convent, an old monk, looking up to the wall, as I am doing at this moment, and seeing the portraits and the busts of the mighty men who had gone before him, said: 'After a long life, and having seen one by one drop by my side, the men who sit and minister here, I have come to the conclusion, that these are the living men, and we are the passing, fleeting shadows.'"

THE VAUX FAMILY.

The following particulars respecting the Vaux Family have been kindly furnished by Mr. George Vaux:—

The Vaux family is of Norman origin, and was transplanted to England in the eleventh century. The name was originally de Vaux (sometimes de Vallibus) but the prefix was long ago dropped and the pronunciation of the name has been as though it were written Vawks for a very long time. The first emigrant was Harold de Vaux. He had three sons each of whom founded a distinct family. The name is somewhat rare, descendants being mostly in the female lines.

George Vaux (known in the family pedigrees as the first of the Georges) was born early in the seventeenth century, probably in the City of Westminster. He resided there in 1654, and later at Caversham Park in Oxfordshire, on an estate held under a Parliamentary Title, which estate he lost on the restoration of Charles II., in 1660.

Through three Georges in the same number of generations, was directly descended, George Vaux, Surgeon (known as the Fifth) of London, whose two sons, James and Richard, emigrated to this country and were the founders of the two Philadelphia families bearing that name.

James Vaux, the elder of the two brothers, came to America just prior to the Revolutionary Struggle, and settled on a large plantation on the left bank of the River Schuylkill, immediately opposite Valley Forge. The encampment of the American Army at the latter place was in full view from his front door, and Sullivan's Bridge had its eastern end upon his plantation.

Washington and Howe were entertained at his house on two consecutive days, the latter expressing great disappointment that he had not known of the presence of the distinguished American in time to capture him.

James Vaux sympathized with the American cause and took the affirmation of allegiance to the Colonial government. For this he was under treatment for two years by the Monthly Meeting of Friends of Gwynedd, to which he belonged, but he was ultimately retained in membership. He afterwards represented Montgomery County in the Pennsylvania Legislature.

James Vaux's only son George Vaux was father of the present George Vaux and grandfather of George Vaux, Jr., both of whose names are mentioned in the Morris pedigree.

Richard Vaux, the younger of the two brothers, came to America shortly before James, and was engaged in mercantile pursuits. When the revolutionary contest broke out, he warmly sympathized with the Royalist cause, and soon after the Declaration of Independence, suddenly went to England, and did not return till after the war was over. The lady to whom he was previously engaged to be married, waited for him till his return, seven years afterwards, when their nuptials were celebrated. His only son Roberts Vaux was the father of Richard Vaux, who married Mary Waln, a descendant of Anthony Morris. Their descendants are given in this genealogy.

Charles C. and Elizabeth J. (Nourse) Simms had issue:—

2254. Charles N. Simms, b. 1854; m. Ella Burroughs.
2255. Richard Douglas Simms, b. 1868.

946. Phineas Pemberton Morris,[8] (James P.[7] Anthony,[6] Samuel,[5] Anthony,[4] Anthony,[3] Anthony,[2] Anthony,[1]) a son of James P. and Louisa (Gardiner) Morris, b. in Bucks Co., Penna., May 2, 1817; d. March 1, 1888; m., 1855, Martha C. Bowers (née Price), dau. of Isaac Price, of Newcastle Co., Del., (son of John Hyland Price, of "Stoneton," Kent Co., Del.,) and Martha Roberts, dau. of Saunders Roberts.

Phineas Pemberton Morris graduated at Georgetown College, D. C., in 1836, studied law and was admitted to the Philadelphia bar Feb. 8, 1840. In 1862 he was given the chair of practice, pleading and evidence at law, and in equity, in the Law Department of the University of Pennsylvania, and in 1884 he became Professor Emeritus. In 1840 he was President of the Law Academy of Philadelphia, and in 1863–4 was a Vice-Provost of that institution. He received the degree of LL. D. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1884. Prof. Morris was the author of "A Treatise on the Law of Replevin" (Philadelphia, 1849), and

"Mining Rights in Pennsylvania" (1860), and he edited John W. Smith's "Landlord and Tenant" (1856). He died in 1888.

Bishop Whitaker, in his address at the Protestant Episcopal Convention of 1888, remarked that:

"In the death of Mr. Pemberton Morris the Diocese has met with a great loss. Few men in all its history have taken so large a part in its councils, and been so implicitly trusted. A jurist of exceptional ability and learning, an upright lawyer, a just man, an earnest Christian, a catholic-minded churchman, his face was the index of his character; a face never to be forgotten by any one who had seen its combination of gentleness and strength."

The following is a copy of the Minute of the Standing Committee of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, March 6, 1888:—

"The Committee desire to place on record, a tribute of respect and affection to the memory of their late colleague, Mr. P. Pemberton Morris, whom it has pleased our Heavenly Father, within the last few days, to call from this world into the rest and blessedness eternal. In connection with many others, not in the church alone, but in the community at large, they can only speak of his removal, under a deep sense of personal bereavement. Mr. Morris has left behind him, the remembrance of a long and active life, the influence of which, has been felt and acknowledged on every side. Blameless in his intercourse with men, and unaffectedly humble and lowly in his walk before God, he has commanded universal esteem. Controlled, in whatever he did, by an ever abiding conviction of duty, and ready to respond with a conscientious devotion of his time and abilities, to every demand of the church and of society upon his offices, he has been sought after, and confided in, wherever fidelity, sound counsel, and sympathetic labours have been needed. True in his profession, generous in temperament, cordial and courteous in manner, the dignity of his outward bearing, fitly reflecting the stately worth and solidity of his character, and tender as well as strong, kind as well as true, he has bequeathed to his associates and to those he has variously aided, a recollection of qualities of mind and heart, that will be most sacredly cherished. We can only bless God for the example he has set before us, in the life of his faithful servant, and pray that we may have the grace to follow it, during the time still remaining for our earthly labors."

THE JENKS FAMILY.

(The following notice has kindly been prepared by Mr. William H. Jenks, of Philadelphia, Pa.)

The family of Jenks is of Welsh descent, and the name in that country can be traced back many centuries. We afterwards find them in Salop or Shropshire, a county of England, adjoining Wales. On the records of the College of Arms, London, England, we find an Act in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, registered in the year 1582, by which "The Coat of Arms of the Ancient Family of Jenks, long in possession of the same at Wolverton Manor, Noles, was confirmed to them in the person of their representative, Sir George Jenks of Salop, Gentleman."

Thomas Jenks, of Shropshire, England, from whom the family in Pennsylvania is descended, was early convinced of the truths of Quakerism preached by George Fox, and was amongst the first to espouse the principles of the Religious Society of Friends. From the "Records of the Sufferings of Quakers," we find that he was twice imprisoned for maintaining his religious principles: First on 8th mo. 5th, 1656, and again on 10th mo. 16th, 1660.

Thomas Jenks, the progenitor of the family in Pennsylvania, was the son of Thomas and Susan Jenks, and was born either in Wales, or in the adjoining county of Shropshire, England, in Jan., 1699–1700. He was brought to America during his early infancy in the year 1700, or shortly afterwards, by his widowed mother, his father having died either during the voyage or just prior to the vessel's sailing; a like misfortune attending very many of the families of the early settlers, owing to the prevalence of contagious fevers and pestilences at that time. On their arrival in Pennsylvania they settled in Wrightstown Township, Bucks County, where shortly afterwards, the mother, Susan Jenks, was married to Benjamin Wiggins of Buckingham, by whom she had one son, Bezaleel, born in 1709. She died very shortly afterwards, and was buried in the ground attached to Wrightstown Meeting. As both of Thomas Jenks' parents died while he was very young, he was left, as it were, alone in the world, to use his own expression, "Like a lone sparrow on the house top." Of his boyhood we consequently know very little, but that little refers to the trials and struggles of an orphan boy among strangers in a newly settled country, where hardships were met at every turn. He was, however, sturdy, and blessed with good health and great energy, and, as his after life proved, possessed merit and many sterling qualities which developed with his manhood, and were conspicuous throughout his long life. He was brought up to the occupation of farming, which he continued in part to follow, and spent his whole life in Bucks County. The parents of Thomas Jenks were undoubtedly connected with the religious Society of Friends in England, and he, consequently, was entitled to a birthright membership. But owing to his father's death while on the voyage to America, or immediately preceding their sailing, and his mother's subsequent marriage to a non-member and her early death, leaving him an orphan at about ten years of age, his birthright privilege was no doubt neglected to be recorded. It was therefore necessary for him to be regularly admitted, when he desired to become a member on reaching manhood, as we find from the records of Buckingham Monthly Meeting, 1st mo. 1st, 1725–26.

He married 3rd mo. 9th, 1731, Mercy Wildman, daughter of John and Marah (Chapman) Wildman, both of whom were among the earliest settlers of Pennsylvania, and three years afterwards removed to Middletown township, where he purchased a tract of over six hundred acres of land, upon which he built his home, and continued to reside during the remainder of his life. Some time prior to the year 1740, he built a Fulling Mill, on Core Creek, that flowed through his property, which he continued to run for a long number of years, following the business of dyeing, fulling and finishing the home-spun goods of his neighbors. The mill, long known as Jenks' Fulling Mill, was one of the oldest in Bucks County, and was run for nearly a century by him and his descendants. His early ledgers, which were beautifully kept, are still preserved, and show that his business was very extensive for the time.

He led an active life, and was successful in his business, which he carefully and industriously followed. He was small in stature, but sprightly; temperate in his habits, and of great physical vigor. Being a man of quick intelligence, he was familiar with and kept abreast of the progress and events of his time, as fully as his retired life would admit of. During the stirring times of the Revolution he was well on to four score years old, yet he lived to see the new government firmly established, and the wilderness of his boyhood a land of cultivated homes.

He died, 5th mo. 4th, 1797, from the results of an accident, in the 98th year of his age. He had three sons and three daughters, all but one of whom survived him. His children and their descendants have been prosperous and influential citizens, and have occupied numerous positions of trust and honor in the community. The earlier members intermarried with the families of Hayhurst, Cutler, Palmer, Blackshaw, Kirkbride, Hutchinson, Baines, Duer, Croasdale, Smith, Pearson, Chapman, Wildman, Mark, Watson, Paxson, Richardson, Lane, Wilson and Story, who were among the earliest settlers of Bucks County, Pennsylvania, where they purchased large tracts of fertile land, upon which they and many of their descendants continued to reside for nearly two centuries.

"MORRIS MANSION," SOUTH EIGHTH STREET, PHILADELPHIA

PARLOR IN THE MORRIS MANSION, SOUTH EIGHTH STREET, PHILADELPHIA

DINING ROOM IN THE "MORRIS MANSION," SOUTH EIGHTH STREET, PHILADELPHIA

THE MORRIS MANSION, SOUTH EIGHTH STREET, PHILADELPHIA.

This Mansion (now 225 South Eighth Street, formerly No. 93,) was erected in 1786, by John Reynolds, and in the course of time, it passed under the hands of the Sheriff, to Ann Dunkin, from whom it was bought in 1817, by Luke W. Morris, a son of Captain Samuel Morris; Luke W. Morris resided there until his death, June 4, 1830.

His widow Ann Pancoast Morris continued to reside there until her death at the age of ninety-four years, on Feb. 17, 1858. The property then passed to her daughter Hannah Ann Buckley, wife of Effingham L. Buckley of New York, who had been married in the old house on June 11, 1833, and four years later (after the death of her husband) returned to it and resided there until her death on Sept. 17th, 1889, at the age of seventy-six years. Upon her death, her only daughter Annie Buckley Morris, wife of Israel W. Morris, inherited the house and continues to reside there.

The property has twice been occupied by four generations of this branch of the family at the same time, at intervals of a generation.

After a period of 112 years the venerable mansion presents a beautifully regular exterior, and it is in a state of perfect preservation. It is a double house, three stories in height, with dormer windows in the roof. The entrance, with a pilaster on either side, and surmounted by a pediment, is in the centre, and the door bears upon it the original "Morris" brass plate. The interior of the mansion is a veritable museum of Morris and Wistar family relics, among them being, the celebrated punch-bowl, presented to Captain Samuel Morris by the members of the Gloucester Fox-Hunting Club.

THE OGDEN FAMILY.

The earliest mention of the name in extant records in Yorkshire is as Peter de Hoton, A. D. 1150. In 1153 John de Hoton is spoken of as "Lord of Hoton." In 1200 John de Hoton is spoken of as father of Sir John de Oketon. Later on the name appears as Okedone, Oakden and finally Ogden. The references to the name are found largely in connection with grants of land or gifts to Priories and Monasteries; sometimes also as to military service. It would appear that at an early date, members of the family embraced the faith of the Society of Friends, for in the year 1654 Edward Ogden, whilst preaching, was pulled down by the hair in Cheshire, England, (Besse's "History of Quakers"). Similar persecutions of other Quaker members of the Ogden family in England are recorded.

David Ogden was born in 1655 near London in the county of Surrey. He came to America in the ship "Welcome" in 1682, William Penn, the Proprietor of Pennsylvania, being on board. He married Martha Hulsten, 1st mo. 12th, 1686, and settled in Delaware County upon 300 acres of land deeded by William Penn. He died in 1705.

Hannah Ogden, born near London, was a sister of David Ogden. In 1690 she married Robert Barbour, both of Chester County. She afterwards married William Hudson, who was a man of large wealth, owning property in the vicinity of Front and Second and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia. "Hudson's Alley" was named after him.

A long line of honorable descendants can be traced, but space fails us to refer to them, excepting to state that Edward H. Ogden, the fourth son of John M. Ogden and Harriet Middleton, was born April 15, 1832, and married Sarah Morris Perot, Dec. 1, 1853. Their descendants are referred to in this Genealogy.

Dec., 1873, Clara H. Hackstaff, widow of the late Captain Macdonough, U. S. N.

The father of Robert Adams was Robert Adams (of Lifford Hall, the family seat in County Donegal, Ireland,) who emigrated to America in 1796. His mother was Martha Jones, only child of James Morris Jones of Philadelphia, who was Captain of the First Regiment, Pennsylvania Infantry, during the Revolution.

Robert Adams, the subject of this sketch, was sent to the Island of Madeira, to the branch house of his father's firm, situated there. He remained four years, and shortly after his return, on the death of his father, succeeded him, remained in business nineteen years, and then retired. He afterwards occupied many positions of trust and honor, among them that of Treasurer of the State Society of the Cincinnati: he was also Chairman of the Washington Monument Fund. He was elected a member of the First City Troop of Philadelphia, Dec. 28, 1838, and reached the grade of Second Sergeant. He was elected a member of the State in Schuylkill, Oct. 7, 1840. During his long service, exceeded by two citizens only, he worked faithfully for the interest of the "State" and the preservation of its traditions. He was one of six members who purchased the grounds at Gray's Ferry, and more recently one of five to purchase the new site on the Delaware River. He was chosen ninth Governor of the State in Schuylkill, Oct. 8, 1855, and declined re-election in 1861. He was again elected Governor in 1862, an honor in which he stands alone in the history of the Company.

Jan. 1, 1897; m. (1st) Oct. 18, 1844, Sarah Hutchinson, b. Aug. 16, 1818; d. May 11, 1852; m. (2ndly) Oct. 22, 1856, Phœbe J. Hutchinson. Both ladies were daughters of Mahlon and Eliza Hutchinson.

Mr. Bushrod Washington Adams was the fortunate possessor of President George Washington's watch, seal and key, and also his diaries for 1795 and 1798—all of which valued relics he preserved with the greatest care. The watch is the one General Washington ordered of Lepine, "Watchmaker to the King." It is smaller and flatter than the old-fashioned English watch. The General carried it with his seal and key, both of Cornelian, attached to a ribbon. The dial is of white enamel, the figures carmine red, and the case is of gold alloyed with copper, giving it the red appearance of jeweller's gold. The watch with the key and seal, became the property of Bushrod Washington, the President's nephew, who left it by will to Robert Adams of Philadelphia, and at his death to Bushrod Adams. On March 25, 1830, it was forwarded to Mr. Adams by John A. Washington, who inherited Mount Vernon from his uncle, Judge Bushrod Washington. The following letter accompanied it:—

"To Robert Adams, Esq.

"My Dear Sir: "Mt. Vernon, 25th March, 1830.

"This will be handed to you by Mr. Nelson Lloyd of Alexa., who is going to your City for the purpose of attending the summer Medical lectures. I take the liberty of introducing him to you; he is a young gentleman of respectable family, very amiable and exemplary character. He will deliver to you the watch formerly worn by Gen'l Washington, afterwards by your friend, my late uncle, who by will gave it to you in the following manner:—

"'My gold Watch I give to my friend Robert Adams of Philadelphia, knowing that he will appreciate the gift, not for the intrinsic value of the article, but because it was worn by the Father of our Country, and afterwards by his friend. After the death of the said Robert Adams, I give the said watch to his son Bushrod.'

"Mrs. W. unites with me in the most respectful manner to yourself, Mrs. A. and the family.

"I am Dear Sir

"Very respectfully yr. obt. Servt

THE DRINKER FAMILY.

PHILIP DRINKER* (b. in 1596; d. June 23, 1647), the founder of the family in America, emigrated with his wife Elizabeth (born 1603) and two children July, 1635, from Exeter, England, in the ship "Abigail," Robert Hackwell, master, bound for New England. They settled and lived in Charlestown, Mass. Their children were: 1. Edward Drinker, b. 1622; d. in 1700; m. (1st) Hannah ——, who d. May 14, 1693; m. (2ndly) Mary Emmons. 2. John Drinker, born 1627; m. Elizabeth ——.

Edward Drinker removed to Boston and was one of the founders of the first Baptist Church in that city in 1665. He was a lieutenant in Captain Turner's company in King Philip's war (1675-6) and was a persecuted preacher in the Baptist denomination, in Charlestown and Boston. He does not appear to have left children. His brother John Drinker, who married Elizabeth ——, had six children, one of whom, John Drinker, born March 31, 1653, resided at Beverley, Mass., but after his marriage to Ruth Balch, removed to Philadelphia. Ruth Balch was the daughter of Benjamin and Sarah (Gardiner) Balch, b. at Beverley, Mass., about 1665. Her father, Benjamin Balch, was born about the close of the year 1628, and was the first child born in Massachusetts Bay Colony. John Balch, the grandfather of Ruth, came from Somersetshire, England, in 1623, and died on his plantation in May or June, 1648.

Sarah Gardiner, the wife of Benjamin Balch, was the daughter of Thomas Gardiner, the first Governor of Cape Ann Colony. He died at Salem, Mass., Dec. 29, 1674.

John and Ruth Drinker had three children, Joseph, Edward and John, the last of whom was lost at sea, unmarried. The eldest son, Joseph, married, 7th mo., 1708, Mary Janney. She was born at Quarry Bank, near the town of Stockport, Cheshire, England. After the decease of her parents she came when young to Pennsylvania, accompanied by her two sisters Tabitha and Elizabeth, to be under the care of her uncle Thomas Janney of Bucks County, Penna., a noted Quaker preacher. Tabitha married in 1709 William Fisher, whose son, William Fisher, was Mayor of Philadelphia in 1773; and Elizabeth married in 1710 Pentecost Teague, from Cornwall, England. Pentecost Teague was appointed a member of the Common Council of Philadelphia under the Charter of 1701, and was also one of the Representatives from Philadelphia in the Assembly of Pennsylvania, (Proud's History of Penna., Vol. i., pp. 452–60).

Joseph Drinker became a member of the Society of Friends, and resided for some time at the southwest corner of Walnut and Dock Streets, and afterwards in a two-story brick house on the east side of Second Street between Elfreth's Alley and Arch Street. He died August 17, 1742. His wife, Mary J. Drinker, died March 17, 1764, in the 84th year of her age. This couple had four children, Henry Drinker (married Mary Gottier), Joseph Drinker (married Sarah Grice), John Drinker (married Susanna Allen) and Tabitha Drinker (married (1st) —— Andrews; married (2ndly) —— Miers).

Edward Drinker, son of John and Ruth (Balch) Drinker, was born in Philadelphia Dec. 24, 1680, near the present corner of Second and Walnut Streets (it is said). To Edward Drinker has been accorded the honor of being the "first native born Philadelphian." His father having left Beverley, Mass., some time subsequently to 1670, came to the shores of the Delaware, then inhabited by Indians and a few Swedes. At a spot that is now designated as Second and Walnut Streets, he erected a cabin that was the primitive house of Philadelphia. Therein his son Edward was born on Christmas Eve, 1680—that is nearly two years before the arrival of William Penn's colonists. He went to Boston when twelve years of age and became a cabinet maker. He returned to his native home in 1745 and lived there until his death, Nov. 18, 1782, in the 102nd year of his age. He had four wives and eighteen children, all the children being by the first wife. His son has put upon record, his belief that his death was caused "by drawing excessive hot smoke of tobacco into his mouth." As a recent writer* has said, "What a terrible warning to those who use the weed! Had he (Edward Drinker) not been a consumer of the plant that Sir Walter Raleigh made world-famous, he might have lived to a green old age, instead of being prematurely cut down in the early part of his second century!"

Henry Drinker (b. in 1709; d. 5th mo. 1st, 1746,) son of Joseph and Mary (Janney) Drinker, was a scrivener. He married without the consent of his parents, Nov. 26, 1731, before a magistrate, at Burlington, N. J., Mary Gottier. His second son Henry Drinker, b. Feb. 21, 1734 (O. S.); d. June 26, 1809; was twice married: (1st) at New Castle, Del., May 4, 1757, to Ann, dau. of Benjamin Swett, who d. May 23, 1758, aged 22 years; m. (2ndly) at Philadelphia, Jan. 13, 1761, Elizabeth Sandwith (b. Feb. 27, 1735 (N. S.); d. Nov. 24, 1807, dau. of William and Sarah (Jervis) Sandwith. Elizabeth Drinker kept a journal for fifty years, extracts from which have been published.

* Megargee, "The Times," Philadelphia, Jan. 22, 1896.

Henry Drinker had been in 1744 apprenticed to George James, and afterwards formed a co-partnership with his son Abel James, in the shipping and importing business under the firm name of James and Drinker. Their operations before the Revolution were quite extensive, they being ranked among the principal importers of the time.

In 1777 Henry Drinker was one of the seventeen members of the Society of Friends who were arrested and transported to Virginia under the pretence of their being inimical to the American cause, but who were discharged after eight months confinement, without being brought to trial or even confronted by their accusers. On 20th of January, 1786, he was elected a member of the American Philosophical Society, and on 15th April, 1789, a member of the Common Council of Philadelphia.

In 1790 he, together with Joseph Smith and others, formed a company called the Union Company, and purchased twenty-four thousand acres of land in Cumberland County, New Jersey—the tract included the present site of Millville. From time to time they sold out to various purchasers.

Henry Drinker invested the greater part of his means in wild lands in Pennsylvania, and was much interested in opening roads and turnpikes through the same, and at his decease in 1809 he left a large unimproved, and for many years unproductive, landed estate.

Henry S. Drinker, son of Henry and Elizabeth (Sandwith) Drinker, b. Oct. 30, 1770; d. in Philadelphia, July 3, 1824; m. Dec. 11, 1794, Hannah Smith, dau. of James and Esther (Hewlings) Smith. He settled, after his marriage, on a farm at Pennsbury Manor, Bucks County, Penna., to which he gave the name of "North Bank." The house which he erected, and in which most of his children were born, is still standing near the Steamboat landing, and is often called "Drinker's Folly."

He made a voyage to Calcutta as supercargo in 1807 (having sold his farm); and thereafter until his decease, in 1824, resided in Philadelphia. The youngest of his eleven children was Sandwith Drinker, b. Nov. 19, 1808; d. at Macao, Jan. 18, 1857;

m. March 17, 1840, Susanna Budd Shober. He was a sea captain, but entered into business at Macao, China, about the year 1849, with William Rawle of Philadelphia, under the firm name of Rawle, Drinker & Co. Susanna B. Drinker d. at Baltimore in 1858.

"William Moore (known as of 'Moore Hall') from his seat on the Schuylkill above Valley Forge, was a son of John Moore,

He was born in Philadelphia, May 6, 1699, and at the age of fourteen was sent to England, to finish his education. He graduated at the University of Oxford in 1719, and returned to America, where he married Williamina, daughter of David, fourth Earl of Wemyss.* She had, together with her brother James (afterwards fifth Earl of Wemyss), been driven from Scotland in the year 1716, on account of their father having espoused the cause of the Pretender.

"There is a tradition in the family, that the wife of David Wemyss (fourth Earl) died in childbed, and believing her expected child to be a boy, requested that it be christened William, after William of Orange; being a girl, it was christened Williamina.

"Upon his marriage, William Moore settled upon an estate presented to him by his father, John Moore, which was situated upon the River Schuylkill, some 25 miles from Philadelphia. This property consisted of about twelve hundred acres of land, which he farmed with the help of a large number of slaves and redemptioners. He built upon it a large house, which was known as 'Moore Hall.'

"William Moore died at 'Moore Hall,' May 30, 1782, aged 84 years. Mrs. Moore survived him until Dec. 6, 1784, in the 80th year of her age, when the family removed to Philadelphia."

*The Wemyss family has great claims to antiquity, being descendants of Gillimachus, fourth Earl of Fife. Their great ancestor, the first Earl, is the "Macduff" of Shakspeare, Thane of Fife, the vanquisher of the Tyrant Macbeth.

THE WHARTON FAMILY.

Thomas Wharton, the son of Richard Wharton of Kellorth, in the parish of Orton or Overton, Westmorland, England, was baptized there, Oct. 16, 1664, and emigrated to Pennsylvania about 1683; was married at the Bank Meeting House, in Philadelphia, on 20th Jan., 1688, to Rachel Thomas, late of Monmouthshire, Wales, and became the founder of the Wharton family in Pennsylvania. He was elected a Member of the Common Council, Oct. 6, 1713, and was an active man in that body, until his death in July, 1718. One of his sons, John Wharton, was Coroner of Chester County, from 1730 until 1737.

Another son, Joseph Wharton, became, in his time, a merchant prince, and his name was indissolubly connected with "Walnut Grove," the lordly mansion, through whose halls, and about whose wooded groves, there strayed the brilliantly-bedecked soldiers and ladies fair, who participated in the gorgeous Meschianza of 1778. Walnut Grove stood on the site of the present Wharton School, at Fifth Street and Washington Avenue, and extended to the river front. Not far from it, was "Peckham," the home of Anthony Morris[4] and his second wife, Elizabeth Hudson.

After Joseph, the most prominent member of the family was Thomas Wharton, Jr., descended from John. He was best known as the first Governor of Pennsylvania, under the Constitution of 1776. He was born in 1735, and removed to Philadelphia, from his Chester County home, about 1755. He became a merchant, and upon the passage of the Stamp Act, became an ardent supporter of the cause of the colonists. He was one of the first to sign the Non-Importation Resolutions and Agreements of 1765; he was one of the twenty-five citizens that formed a Committee of Safety in 1775; he became President of that Committee 24th of July, 1776; and in 1777 he was elected President of Pennsylvania, which office he held until his death, 22nd of May, 1778. Charles Wharton, son of Joseph, was a prominent merchant, and the husband of Hannah Redwood, niece of the founder of the "Redwood Library," Newport, R. I.

Robert Wharton, the Mayor, a son of Joseph Wharton, was b. on 12th Jan., 1757; d. 7th March, 1834. He became a merchant in Philadelphia, but spent much of his life in outdoor sports, and became President of the Gloucester Fox Hunting Club, organized in 1766. He was elected a member of the State in Schuylkill Fishing Club in 1790, and, upon the death of Capt. Samuel Morris in 1812, was elected Governor of that organization, and was yearly re-elected until 1828. He was a member of the City Councils, 1792–95, and in 1796 was made an Alderman of Philadelphia. In that year he successfully quelled a riot among the sailors, who had organized themselves together, and demanded exorbitant wages.

He was Mayor of Philadelphia, 1798–99, 1806–7, 1809–10, 1814–19, 1820–24. He became a member of the Philadelphia Troop of Light Horse in 1798, was elected its Captain in 1803. The six troops of horse in Philadelphia having united, formed a regiment of cavalry, and he was elected Colonel, 1810. In 1811, Colonel Wharton was made a Brigadier-General of the Pennsylvania State Militia.

Several members of the Wharton family have distinguished themselves as lawyers, and writers upon legal subjects.

Peregrine Hogg Wharton, a great-grandson of Thomas Wharton, had a daughter, Mary Ann Wharton, who married Samuel P. Griffitts, son of Prof. Samuel P. Griffitts. (Descendants are given in this Genealogy). William Wharton, son of Charles, married Deborah Fisher, and their daughter, Esther Fisher Wharton, married Benjamin R. Smith, (Descendants are given in this Genealogy).

Joseph Wharton, (a son of William Wharton and brother of Mrs. Benjamin R. Smith,) in May, 1881, founded the "Wharton School of Finance and Economy," as a Department of the University of Pennsylvania. He was also one of the founders of Swarthmore College, of whose Board of Trustees, he has been President since 1882.

CHEW FAMILY.

The first English Chews settled in Virginia nearly three hundred years ago, and the history of the family is connected with events of public interest in four States of the American Union.

John Chew, his wife, Sarah, and their three servants came to Virginia early in the reign of James I. John Chew became a member of the General Assembly of Virginia about 1624, and his name is met with as a member of the Upper and Lower House until 1643. It is believed that with his children Samuel, Joseph and others he removed to Maryland in the latter year. Joseph in Maryland married Miss Larkin, and Samuel married Ann, only child of William Ayres, before 1657. Samuel became a judge of the provincial courts and in 1670 he was a member of the Upper House, and held that office until his death, March 15, 1676–7. He had nine children, among them Benjamin Chew, b. 2nd mo. 13th, 1671; d. in Maryland March 3, 1699–1700. He m. 10th mo. 8th, 1692, Elizabeth Benson, by whom he had three daughters and one son—Samuel. This Samuel Chew "of Maidstone," b. 8th mo. 30th, 1693; d. June 16th, 1743, may be considered the founder of the Chew family in Pennsylvania. He m. (1st) Oct. 22, 1715, Mary Galloway, d. May 26, 1734, dau. of Samuel and Anne Galloway; m. (2ndly) Sept. 28, 1736, Mary Galloway (née Paca), widow of his brother-in-law Richard Galloway, of Cumberstone, Md. Samuel Chew became a practising physician and joined the Society of Friends.

He removed in the latter part of his life to Dover in New Castle County, one of the lower counties, which afterwards became the State of Delaware. Here he was made Chief Justice of the Government of New Castle, Sussex and Kent of Delaware.

In 1745, while the American Colonies, involved in the war between France and Great Britain, were in danger of invasion, the Proprietary Government was contending with the Assembly over the granting of supplies for the troops and the aid of the King. Judge Chew, "Quaker" though he was, had no scruples about the rightness of lawful war, and in a charge to the Grand Jury of Newcastle County he strongly enforced the duty of defence.

Benjamin Chew, son of Dr. Samuel Chew, physician and judge, was born at the family mansion, West River, Maryland, Nov. 29, 1722; d. Jan. 20, 1810; m. (1st) June 13, 1747, Mary Galloway, dau. of Samuel Galloway, of Maryland, by his wife Mary Thomas. She d. Nov. 9, 1755, aged twenty-six years. He m. (2ndly) Sept. 12, 1757, Elizabeth Oswald, dau. of James Oswald by his wife Mary Turner.

After receiving a liberal education, Benjamin Chew began his legal training in the office of Andrew Hamilton in Philadelphia, and completed his studies at the Middle Temple in London.

Upon his return to America, he settled at the place of his father's residence, but removed to Philadelphia about 1754. He was Attorney-General of Pennsylvania from Jan. 14, 1755, until Nov. 4, 1769, appointed a member of the Provincial Council, 2nd Nov., 1755, and was Recorder of the City of Philadelphia from Aug. 29, 1755, until June 25, 1774. He was made Register-General of Wills for the Province in 1765, and in 1774 was appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. In consequence of Revolutionary events beginning in April of the next year, he was removed, and his authority ceased altogether, by the overturning of the Proprietary Government in 1776. Chief Justice Chew's position was like that of many other Americans, whose sympathies were with their countrymen even to the point of resistance, but which stopped short of the prospect of an independent government. Under the belief that his sympathies were really with the royal cause, Congress, on July 31, 1777, determined to have Judge Chew, John Penn, late Proprietor of the Province and others sent back into the country. The result was they were ordered to be removed as prisoners to Fredericksburg, Va., but they were really removed to the Union Iron Works, near Burlington, N. J. In the Spring of 1778 they were released by order of Congress, and conveyed back to the State of Pennsylvania.

Benjamin Chew, on his removal to Philadelphia in 1754, resided on Front Street, above Dock, until his purchase by deed of May 3, 1771, for £5000, of the house on Third Street, below Willing's Alley, which Charles Willing had built for his son-in-law, Colonel Byrd of Virginia, and which Governor John Penn and wife were just vacating to go to England. Chief Justice Chew also purchased an estate on the outskirts of Germantown, upon which, about the year 1761, he built his country seat called "Cliveden." During his absence in Burlington, the battle of Germantown was fought, and this country house was found sufficiently strong to resist the cannonading of the Americans.

In the fall of 1779 Chew sold the "Cliveden" property to Blair McClenachan for £2500, but repurchased it for £8500 in April, 1797.

After the animosities of the war had subsided, Benjamin Chew was appointed by two commissions, dated respectively 3rd and 4th October, 1791, as Judge and President of the High Court of Errors and Appeals of Pennsylvania. He retained this position until 1808, when the Court was abolished.

He died at his home on Third Street, Jan. 20, 1810, and was bu. in St. Peter's Churchyard.

One of his daughters, Mary Chew, b. March 10, 1747–8; d. July 22, 1794; m. May 18, 1768, Alexander Wilcocks, son of John Wilcocks by his wife Elizabeth, dau. of Alexander Wooddrop of Philadelphia. Alexander Wilcocks studied law, was appointed March 4, 1774, one of the Justices for Philadelphia County. He was one of three added in October, 1775, to the Committee of Safety. After the Revolution he was Recorder of Philadelphia, holding the office until his death, July 22, 1801. He was bu. with his wife at St. Peter's, Philadelphia. Their son, Benjamin Chew Wilcocks, b. Dec. 13, 1776; d. Dec. 1, 1845; m. Oct. 10, 1842, Sarah Waln, dau. of William Waln by his wife Mary, dau. of John Wilcocks, who was uncle of Benjamin C. Wilcocks. (Descendants given in this Genealogy.)

Benjamin Chew, Jr., b. in Philadelphia Sept. 30, 1758, son of the Councillor, grad. at the College of Philadelphia in 1775, studied in the Middle Temple and became a member of the Philadelphia Bar, was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, July 5, 1787. He d. April 30, 1844; buried in the family vault of St. Peter's. He m. Dec. 11, 1788, Katherine, (b. July 6, 1770; d. March, 1855) dau. of Henry Banning of Maryland.

After practising law for several years, Mr. Chew gradually retired from active life. He received at "Cliveden" in 1825, General Lafayette, who was making his final visit to Philadelphia.

The family of Benjamin Chew[2] was large, his sons Benjamin Chew, Jr., and Samuel Chew, were members of the Philadelphia Bar, admitted in 1815 and 1818 respectively. His fifth son, Henry Banning Chew, b. Dec. 11, 1800; d. Dec. 12, 1866; grad. A. B. (U. of P.); of Philadelphia, "Merchant," afterwards of Epsom, Baltimore Co., Md.; m. (1st) Harriet Ridgely, who

CHEW HOUSE, GERMANTOWN

THE CHEW MANSION, GERMANTOWN,

"CLIVEDEN."

It was in this memorable house that on Oct. 4, 1777, occurred some of the most remarkable incidents of the battle of Germantown. The British troops occupied the village, and they were attacked by Washington's army, coming from the Metuchen Hills, and in four columns, by the Old York Road, the Limekiln Road, the Ridge Road, and the main road to Germantown. The column of Anthony Wayne drove the British to flight, and the rout continued for more than a mile. Then Lieutenant-Colonel Musgrave, of the 40th British foot, while in retreat, resorted to a measure which seriously affected the fortunes of the day. With six companies under his command, he took possession of the Chew House, barricaded the doors and windows, and turned the mansion into a fortification. Conway, Sullivan and Wayne, ignorant of the movement, passed on in hot pursuit, but as the reserve, with whom was Washington, passed on, they were startled by musketry firing from the windows of the Chew House. The time lost by stopping the whole force to attack the house is claimed to have lost the Battle of Germantown for the Americans, but historians do not agree upon this point.

Certain it is, however, that there was fierce fighting around the house, and brave deeds were done. Tradition says that one of the family servants, who was in hiding in the cellar, rushed up stairs when a cannon ball crashed through the door and backed against the hole. An officer told him he would be killed. "No, no, Massa," yelled the negro, "you never seed two cannon balls come troo de same hole. Dis is de safest place in de house."

The marks of the cannon and musket shot show plainly on the stone walls to-day. One of the old doors is shattered by musket and cannon balls, and a part of the oak floor bears the scars of the splintering blows of the British musket butts as the cartridges were driven home. The artillery made but little impression on the stout walls, and the house stood the siege practically uninjured.

Cliveden has descended through successive generations of Chews, and is still the family home, "a staunch and stately mansion, although its walls have defied a century and a half of wear and weather, the shocks of artillery assaults, and the rain of musketry fire."

THE PENINGTON FAMILY.

The family traces its lineage to Jamel de Penitone, a person of note and affluence, who, according to Fuller, resided at Muncaster, in Cumberland, England, long antecedent to the conquest in 1066. His lineal descendant, Sir John de Penington, Knight, gave to King Henry VI. a secret reception in Muncaster Castle in 1456. In return, the King gave him a curiously wrought glass cup with the blessing to the family, that they should ever prosper, and never want a male heir, so long as they should preserve it unbroken, which, the superstition of those times imagined, carried good fortune, and called it the "Luck of Muncaster." A long list could be quoted of Peningtons who have in various reigns been Sheriffs. In the time of Charles I. Isaac Penington, an Alderman, became Sheriff (and Lord Mayor in 1643) of London, and was Knighted by the Speaker of the House of Commons.*

Sir Isaac Penington was a Commissioner of the High Court which tried King Charles I., but he did not sign the death-warrant. His son Isaac Penington (b. 1617), who became a "Friend," married Mary, daughter of Sir John Proud, and widow of Sir William Springett, and mother of Gulielma Maria Springett, the first wife of William Penn. Edward Penington, son of Isaac and Mary, and half-brother of Mrs. Penn, came over to Pennsylvania to act as Surveyor-General of the Province, and married Sarah, daughter of Samuel Jennings, the Quaker Governor of West Jersey, and was the grandfather of the Edward Penington who married Sarah Shoemaker, daughter of the Councillor. The latter Edward became a merchant in Philadelphia, and took some part in politics at the beginning of the revolutionary struggle. He was a member of the Provincial Convention of 1774, but after the Declaration of Independence, was one of the "disaffected," and on the approach of the British in 1777, was arrested and confined in the Freemason's Lodge, and from thence removed to Virginia. He died Sept. 30, 1796. Edward Penington, the grandson of the last-mentioned Edward, married Elizabeth Ann Lewis, Nov. 7, 1827. Their descendants are given in this Genealogy.

THOMAS B. MORRIS

NINTH GENERATION.

2121. Thomas Burnside Morris,[9] (William E.,[8] Samuel W.,[7] Benjamin W.,[6] Samuel,[5] Anthony,[4] Anthony,[3] Anthony,[2] Anthony,[1]) eldest son of William E. and Mary N. (Burnside) Morris, was b. May 13, 1842; d. Nov. 8, 1885; m. Oct. 3, 1871, Sarah Arndt Sletor.

The following account of the life and labors of Mr. Thomas B. Morris is quoted from "The Presbyterian," of Dec. 12, 1885:—

"Mr. Thomas B. Morris, whose death at Oakland, Cal., at the age of forty-three years, has filled many hearts with sorrow, was a man of ability, energy, sincere piety and moral courage, who filled up the measure of his days with such works, as follow only the good man, when he rests from his labors.

"He was the worthy son of noble ancestors. Thomas Burnside, his grandfather, was a Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. His father, William E. Morris, was State Engineer of Pennsylvania, and distinguished in his profession, and a devout and humble Christian. His uncle, Bishop Morris, of Oregon, is one of the honored and efficient representatives of his Church.

"Mr. Morris early attained to eminence in his father's profession. He was only twenty-one years of age when he filled the important position of chief engineer, and became a railroad builder, whose thorough training, untiring energy and accurate judgment secured him great prominence in his profession. Two hundred and fifty miles of the Union Pacific, over the Rocky Mountains, were located and built under his direction, and several sections also of the Northern Pacific. In 1874 he gave up the regular practice of his profession, and engaged in the coal business, in Washington Territory. Two years later, he came to San Francisco, and soon after, became President of the Renton Coal Company, which position he occupied at the time of his death.

"The Christian life upon which he publicly entered at the age of seventeen years was consistent, earnest and active throughout. In youth and manhood, at home and abroad, he was an open and avowed Christian.

"Nine years ago, Mr. Morris came to make his home in San Rafael, where he at once identified himself with the church of which the writer was then pastor, and was soon called to fill the important and responsible offices, of Sabbath-School Superintendent and Ruling Elder.

"While he entered upon the latter office with diffidence, he did it with a high appreciation of its dignity and duties, and soon made his influence felt in session, Presbytery and Synod. His munificence, his deep interest in the financial welfare of the Church, his constant attendance upon all its services, his kindness and sympathy, made him a pillar of strength to his pastor.

"His home was one of large-hearted hospitality. With the devoted wife, to whom he was warmly attached, with bright and loving children, he had a home that was restful, and radiant with the divine light that illuminates every truly Christian household.

"The faith in God and the love for Christ that characterized him in life, shone out more brilliantly as the end drew near. To him 'death was the crown of life.' He looked forward with triumph to a blessed rest. Weary and weak in a body which had been fatally smitten, he exclaimed again and again, 'I shall be satisfied, when I awake with thy likeness.' Psalm xvii., 15. He died the death of the righteous, and his last end was peace.

"The remains of Mr. Morris were brought to San Rafael, on Tuesday, and funeral services were held at the Presbyterian Church, of which he had been one of the most influential members, during all his residence here. The church was completely filled, and every one present was a sincere mourner. The services were brief, and simply, but exceptionally, impressive.

"To Mrs. Morris Mr. Barstow wrote, after Mr. Morris' death, in the following touching and beautiful strain:—

"'On our side, the human side, your unspeakable loss and sorrow seem to have no relief. Mr. Morris was so full of energy and vitality for truth and right, and in the zenith of his strength for achievement of good, how could such an one be called upon to lay his armor down, and how could he be spared by all the high interests of humanity to which he was devoted? These are the questions of those who loved him and knew his worth. But how different is the view in the light of the Word of Revelation! I can never forget the impression made upon my heart, during the moments of that rest in the little church of his love, in this place, last Tuesday. I hope the same peace-inspiring reflections were present in your thought. There was no longer a broken column, untimely crumbled, in view, but instead, the finished and polished stone, already in its place in the eternal temple.'

"The record of such a life is a precious legacy to those who loved him.

"J. S. M."

Jan. 28, 1847, in Kentucky; son of General John Adair of White Hall, Kentucky, who was sent in 1849 by President Polk to Astoria, Oregon, as Collector of Customs, the first Federal officer of the United States Government on the Pacific coast. It is an interesting fact, that General Adair was sent by the United States Government to that section of the country, when it was also claimed by the English. In 1849 the remains of an English stockade were in the American settlement "Astoria," referred to by Washington Irving. The name Astoria had almost been lost sight of, and the old trading post of John Jacob Astor was known as Fort George. The appointment of General Adair to that part, is a piece of National History connected with the pioneer days of the Pacific coast.

"On the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul, January 25th, the Rev. Dr. William M. Barker was consecrated Missionary Bishop of Western Colorado, in St. Paul's Church, Duluth, Minnesota, of which he was the rector at the time of his Election to the Episcopate. The Right Rev. Dr. Benjamin W. Morris, Bishop of Oregon, was the consecrator, and there were present and assisting, Bishop Spalding of Colorado, Bishop McLaren of Chicago, Bishop Gilbert, Assistant Bishop of Minnesota, and Bishop Nicholson of Milwaukee. In the Communion Office the Bishop of Oregon was the Celebrant, the Bishop of Chicago reading the Epistle, and the Bishop of Colorado the Gospel. The Sermon was delivered by Bishop Gilbert, who took as its text Deuteronomy xxxiii., 23: 'O Naphtali, satisfied with favor, and full with the blessing of the Lord, possess thou the west and the south.' An unprecedented occurrence was the presence of Fathers Toth and Dabonsky of Minneapolis, who attended Bishop Barker's consecration as authorized representatives of the Eastern Church. THE HACKER FAMILY.

(The following account of the Hacker family is from the pen of Mr. William H. Jenks.)

The Hacker family is of English descent. The first mention that we find of them in America is of William Hacker, who is recorded as living in Lynn, Mass., in the year 1643. He was born —— 1594, and died in Lynn, 12th mo., 1661. His wife, Elizabeth, died May 21, 1661. From his will and the inventory of his estate we should judge that farming was a part, at least, of his occupation, and that he was a man in good circumstances for his time.

George Hacker of Salem, Mass., from whom the family directly descends, was most probably the son, or possibly the grandson, of William Hacker of Lynn. He was born —— 1647, married the last week in September, 1672, Bethiah Meacham, (born —— 1650) daughter of Jeremiah and Margaret Meacham. He died 10th mo. —— 1702. He was a man of some property, and, as one of the early settlers of Salem, his estate had registered rights in the Common or Pasture Lands of the town. He had eight children most of whom survived him. His son Isaac Hacker, born —— 1691, m. Nov. 25, 1714, Hannah Pope, daughter of Samuel and Exercise (Smith) Pope, who was born Feb. 17, 1696–97. As Isaac Hacker was only eleven years old when his father died, he is said to have had a hard struggle during his youth and early manhood. Shortly after his marriage (between the years 1715 and 1720) he built a large house upon land that had been owned by his family since the earliest settlement of the town, at the corner of Boston and Federal Streets, Salem, Mass., which was kept as a family residence for over a century, and was long known as the "Old Hacker House." It was standing in fairly good preservation up to within the past year, when it was torn down to make way for improvements. Isaac Hacker died —— 1753. He and his family were members of the Religious Society of Friends, his wife being a minister. He had nine children all of whom we suppose survived him.

His son Jeremiah Hacker, b. 3rd mo. 28th, 1725, was evidently a man of marked character and ability. He was a prominent member of the Society of Friends, an Elder of Meeting, and, throughout his life, active in his interest for the welfare and good of others. He was extensively engaged as a shipping merchant in Salem up to the time of the Revolution, and as a man of business he appears to have been active and successful. He was twice married, first, 1st mo. 28th, 1747, to Lydia Smith, daughter of John and Mary (Shrove) Smith, who was born 4th mo. 29th, 1726; died 3rd mo. 17th, 1764, and by whom he had seven children, and afterwards, 4th mo. 7th, 1765, to Anne Southwick, by whom he had six children. The troubles incident to the Revolutionary War broke up his business, and, in consequence, he removed from Salem to an estate he had purchased on the Androscoggin River in Maine, where many Friends were settling, and where he passed the remainder of his life, frequently, however, returning to visit his old home. He died 3rd mo. 26th, 1801.

His oldest child, Isaac Hacker, b. 7th mo. 6th, 1750 (O. S.), m. 4th mo. 24th, 1774, Anna Estes, dau. of William and Ruth (Graves) Estes, b. 9th mo. 28th, 1754; d. 9th mo. 8th, 1802, by whom he had ten children. During Isaac Hacker's early manhood he was associated with his father in the shipping business until, with the commencement of the Revolutionary War, their commerce was driven from the sea and they were obliged to seek other interests. Being a man of good education, he was soon afterwards appointed Master of the West School of Salem, which position, from his talents, acquirements and personal qualities, he seems to have been especially adapted to fill. Throughout almost the remainder of his life he continued at its head, and, owing to this long and appreciated association, the school from that day, until the present time, has been called by his name.

After his father's removal to Maine in 1782, he retained possession of the old homestead in Salem, which, with his generous hospitality, continued to be the abode of strangers and the retreat of those who were in need. He died 9th mo. 5th, 1818.

Four of his children subsequently removed to Philadelphia, viz.: William Estes Hacker, Isaiah, Hannah (wife of Lloyd Mifflin) and Jeremiah.

Jeremiah Hacker, son of Isaac and Anna Estes Hacker, was born 7th mo. 12th, 1799, in Salem, Mass. He was educated by his father, and, when old enough to enter mercantile life, was associated with his brother William in the lumber business in their native town. Although successful in business, he soon desired a wider field, and removed to Philadelphia in the year 1825, where he entered into partnership with his brother Isaiah, who had preceded him, and who was engaged in business as a commission merchant for the sale of dry goods.

He m. 11th mo. 10th, 1830, Beulah Morris, dau. of Isaac W. and Sarah Paschall Morris, b. 2nd mo. 2nd, 1811, by whom he had seven children. In the year 1840, although still a comparatively young man, as he had had a successful career as a merchant, he retired from active business, occupying himself afterwards with affairs that were chiefly devoted to the benefit of others.

He d. 10th mo. 21st, 1866, at his country residence in Germantown, Philadelphia. His wife and six children survived him, she dying 1st mo. 20th, 1892.

A DESCRIPTION OF SOME OF THE RELICS PRESERVED IN THE MORRIS FAMILY.

The illustration of "Guest Relics" at page 128 represents:

A pair of Brass Fire-Dogs, with brass bosses.
A small Brass Fender.
Brass Tongs and A Brass Fire-Shovel.

All these articles are in excellent preservation, and respecting them, Deborah Morris[4] writes in the Codicil to her Will: "All preserved by being thrown down my great grandfather's William Bailyes his well in Birmingham, [England], during Cromwell's Wars." Their actual age it is impossible to determine. They are here arranged, for the sake of convenience, in a modern fire-place. For permission to photograph this and the next group of relics, we are indebted to the kindness and courtesy of their late owner, Miss Anne J. Morris and her sister Mrs. Henry G. Morris, daughters of the late Mr. Anthony Saunders Morris.

The illustration of "Morris, Guest, Senior and Chanders Relics" at page 128.

At the back of the group of articles here represented is:

1. A large pewter dish, with "T. CHANDERS" stamped upon the back of it. It is probably about 300 years old.

2. Upon one side of the group, is displayed a large linen sheet, which belonged to T. Chanders, and it has been marked thus by Deborah Morris:

"T. CHANDERS 1600
"MY MOTHER'S GREAT GRANDFATHER
"D. M."

3. Upon the other side of the group, is shown a linen Pillow Case, which belonged to T. Chanders, and it has been marked thus: "T. C. 1622."

4. In the centre lies a Towel, the material for which, was spun in 1648, by Elizabeth Senior, wife of Anthony Morris.[1] In reference to it, Deborah Morris writes:

"This was my dear Father's own grandmother—her maiden name was Elizabeth Senior. "D. M."

Lying upon these linen articles are the following:—

5. The Malacca Cane Walking Stick of Anthony Morris.[2] Upon the silver band below the ivory handle is engraved

"Anthony Morris

1686."

6. A Pocket Bible, dated London, 1685. This Book is elegantly bound in morocco leather, richly gilt, and protected with an embroidered covering. It belonged to Phœbe Guest, b. 7th mo. 28th, 1685; m. Anthony Morris,[3] 3rd mo. 10th, 1704. It came into the possession of Deborah Morris, her dau., in 1738, and upon the fly leaves, are recorded the names, and dates of births, of the fourteen children of Anthony and Phœbe Morris. In addition to these, are the following entries:—

"Phœbe Guest, her Bible, given her by her mother, ye 15 of ye 10 month 1691.

"She was born ye twenty eighth of ye seventh month 1685.

"My Negro girl Zilpha was born 5th Sept. 1716, also a negro boy born by Negro woman who lived to ye age of 17 mo & decd.

"Phebey Guest her book given her by her mother, ye 15th day of ye tenth month 1691.

"She was born ye twenty eight of ye seventh month 1685.

"Debbe Morris her Book given her by her mother, 1738 6mo. 1st.

"Deborah Morris to her niece Sally S. Morris, daughter of Thomas Morris, Nov. 17th, 1775."

Upon the title page of this Bible we find:

"Printed at the Theater in Oxford, and are to be sold by Thomas Guys at the Oxford Arms, on the West side of the Royal Exchange, in Cornhill, London, 1685."

7. 8. Two pocket books with embroidered covers, which belonged to Anthony Morris.[3]

9. The Marriage Certificate of Anthony Morris[2] and his first wife Mary Jones, dated the thirtieth day of the first month, 1676. In addition to the signatures of the Bride and Bridegroom, there are upon it, those of thirty-seven persons who witnessed the marriage ceremony, at the Savoy Meeting, in the Strand, London, England.

This valuable Document was photographed by the kind permission of its late owner, Miss Annie J. Morris. A larger copy of it, is given elsewhere in this work.

Descriptions of other Relics preserved in the Morris family are given in the body of this work.

SCHUYLKILL FISHING COMPANY OF THE STATE IN SCHUYLKILL.

"If you look to its antiquity, it is most ancient,
If to its dignity, it is most honorable,
If to its jurisdiction, it is most extensive."

Many members of the Morris family have, through several generations, been closely identified with this ancient body, which is as quaint in the humor of its constitution and customs, as the title it bears. It was founded in 1732, and claims to be the oldest organization of its kind in the world. It is a testimony to the thought bestowed by the settlers of Pennsylvania upon healthful recreation, and simple social pleasures.

In 1732, a few choice spirits, some of whom were original settlers, and emigrated with Penn to the New World, determined to found a "Colony" at a retired spot on the banks of the beautiful Schuylkill, and by permission of William Warner, an amiable and worthy member of the Society of Friends, settled on a portion of his well wooded estate, since called "Eaglesfield," he being denominated the "Baron," and receiving a yearly rental of three sun perch for the acre of land they occupied. This was situated on the western bank of the meandering stream, about one mile above the present Fairmount Water Works.

The "Colony in Schuylkill" was unique in its nature and character. Its first Governor, elected 1732, was Thomas Stretch; the other officers chosen, being five members of assembly, a sheriff, a coroner, and a secretary, acting also as treasurer.

In 1748 a "Court House" for the meetings of the Governor, assembly and colonists was erected at Warner's.

The original members of the "Colony" were men of note; among them were Thomas Stretch, the first Governor, James Logan, Chief Justice, President of the Council of Pennsylvania, and Mayor of Philadelphia; William Plumsted, who was three times elected Mayor of Philadelphia; Caleb Cash, who was City Coroner; Joseph Wharton and High Sheriff James Coultas, who was also Judge of the Orphans' Court in 1765. The following additional Mayors of Philadelphia have been members of the "State in Schuylkill": Thomas Lawrence, Henry Harrison, John Lawrence, Samuel Shoemaker, William Fisher, Robert Wharton, William Milnor, Jr., and John Swift. Thomas Wharton, the first President of Pennsylvania, was also a member.

Upon the death of Governor Stretch the "Honourable Samuel Morris, Esq.," on 11th October, 1766, was unanimously elected Governor of the "Colony," and was annually re-elected for forty-six years, until his death in July, 1812.

The War of Independence dispersed the members of the little peaceful "Colony in Schuylkill," some to their country's councils and some to the tented field. Governor Samuel Morris went forth to fight, as commander of the Philadelphia Troop of Light Horse, and the "Colony" sent its full quota of soldiers without the necessity of a draft.

When the Revolution had altered the status of the Colonies, the Fishing Company, approving of the changed order, issued a "Declaration of Independence" on its own account, and in October, 1782, it became a "free and independent State," with a "Grand Legislative and Executive Council."

Early in the eighteenth century, an Association called the "Society of Fort St. David's," for similar purposes, enrolling on its list a large and respectable number of associates, emphatically termed the "Nobility of these days," was established at the Falls of Schuylkill. The War of Independence dispersed the garrison of Fort St. David's, and the peace found their block house in a heap of ruins, it having been consumed by the devastating Hessian corps of the enemy. The reduced Society, thenceforth joined forces with the "State in Schuylkill," which hailed, with a hearty welcome, the acquisition of members to their thinned ranks, and valuable additions to their property. Five pewter dishes, brought to this country by the proprietary, stamped with the family coat-of-arms, and presented to the Society of Fort St. David's, were among the treasures added to the common stock.

In June, 1787, General Washington received the hospitality of this piscatorial government, and even up to the present time the "Memory of Washington" is always drunk, standing, at its banquets.

The erection of the dam at Fairmount in 1822, stopped the tide water and threatened destruction to the fishing. The "Schuylkillians" with sorrow relinquished the land they had occupied, for ninety years, trusted their "Castle" to the waters of the Schuylkill, and floating it five miles down the river, located their settlement at Rambo's Rock, below Gray's Ferry.

General Lafayette was shortly afterwards entertained by the State in Schuylkill, in 1825, by way of completing his tour of the States of the Union,—a joke which he pleasantly fell in with—and kept as mementos, the apron and straw hat, adorned with inscriptions, in which he had assisted at the cooking of his repast.

In 1887, the State in Schuylkill bought the "Clock House" and two acres of ground on the Delaware, opposite Beverly. The old "Castle" and belongings were removed from Gray's Ferry to its present site between Andalusia and Dunk's Ferry, and refitted at an expense of $1700.

The "Clock House" faces the river, and the venerable wooden "Castle," after its double removal, keeps it company. In the rear gable of the "Castle," the figures 1732, tell of Provincial and Royal days in Pennsylvania. The windows have pointed Gothic arches, and seats are arranged on the platform outside of the building.

The ample banqueting hall has piscatorial pictures on its walls, and Izaak Walton could have dined here gloriously. Washington's and Lincoln's faces smile on the fishermen as they eat. Straw hats in abundance are ready for those who need them. Within a short distance from the "Castle" is the old Kitchen with its large fire-place, logs of wood and overhanging crane. Cooking utensils abound, and here the gentlemen cooks exhibit their skill. The bill of fare is displayed upon a large blackboard.

Two business meetings are held each year,—in May and October, at the first of which, eleven fishing days are named, so as to occur once a fortnight, during the season. The fishing-day is begun early in the morning; at twelve, the anglers return, and cook a lunch of hot beef-steaks, which they dispatch for the stay of hunger, until the regular repast, made from their day's spoil, at 4 P. M. All the culinary operations are conducted by the honorable members, who, though disguised in aprons and straw hats, represent the prime social and commercial dignity of Philadelphia. On the May Gala day, the two mandarin hats, presented by a former and deceased member, are decorated with flowers; everything is lovely, and general hilarity prevails. Only thirty gentlemen are now admitted to the full enjoyment of the Fish-House privileges, but several candidates for admission, under the title of "apprentices" are always attached, and these are bound, while under probation, to observe extraordinary punctilio toward the regular members. They must remain standing, until the others are seated, must wait upon them, and so on, in fact the whole organization is picturesquely cobwebbed with traditionary customs.* Among the many relics sacredly preserved at the "Clock House," is the frying pan used by Captain Samuel Morris, to whose "Memory" a toast is always drunk standing, after those to Washington and Lincoln.

At the time of the writer's visit, on Oct. 2, 1895, by invitation, as a guest of one of the "Counsellors," one of the things which struck him most, was the seriousness, and scrupulous care, with which gentlemen of the highest social position, attired in aprons, and with large straw hats upon their heads, were attending to the minutest details of the culinary department. Beefsteaks, barbacued pigs, rock fish, lobster salad, potatoes and other vegetables received their masterly attention, and when the "apprentices" served the viands, hot from the spit, nothing was wanting to gratify the appetite of the severest epicure. A cordial welcome, a lavish hospitality, and an abundance of good fare, followed by speech-making and singing, made the day one of the most delightful of a lifetime.

The present Governor of the State is William Fisher Lewis, Esq., and the three Counsellors are Ellicott Fisher, Victor Guilloû, and Neilson Brown, Esqrs.

Seal of Incorporation, 1844.

*The rules allow 8 "apprentices." At the present time (1898) there are 28 members and 7 apprentices.

AN OLD TIME ROMANCE—TOLD IN AN OLD TIME LETTER.

The First Mess of Tea made on Nantucket Island, 1735.

It is just an old yellow letter with jagged creases, that has been handed down from generation to generation, through a chain of thrifty Vermont families. As the hero of the romance was a "Morris," and it is altogether such a quaint, charming little story, and so genuine withal, it is here reproduced in its entirety. Now that a hundred and sixty years, or more, have passed since the writer of it, a modest Puritan maiden, was laid away in one of those old Boston churchyards, this account of an eventful passage in her pure sweet life, goes out of the family, in order that others may enjoy the pleasure of its perusal.

"Nantucket Island, September 20, 1735.

"My Own Dear Mother:

"It seems a very very long time since you and my honored father and my ever beloved sisters and brothers started for your new home. But I suppose you have not at this writing reached your destination, and I think of you every day and all day, marching and marching, following the lonely trail through the interminable forests, and sometimes I am tempted to repine, in that my father thought it best to remove to that far away settlement. But my grandfather tells me, that the entertaining of that sentiment, would be unworthy of the daughter of a pioneer, and since it was thought best for me to remain behind for a season, I must improve my time to the best advantage. This I try to do with cheerfulness, and Aunt Content is so kind as to say that I am of service to her in our household duties, and in spinning and weaving. Peradventure my letter shall be a puzzle to you, I hasten to say, that I indite a paragraph or two at a time upon leisure, and whenever anything comes into my mind that I desire you to know, I straightway go to my uncle's desk and set it down. I do this, dear Mother, that you may share in my pleasurable thoughts, and may know of my daily life, also that my brothers and sisters may, in a measure partake of my enjoyment.

"The principal news I have now to tell is—my Cousin Nathaniel Starbuck, junior, has returned to Boston from his late long voyage to China, and is now hourly looked for here. There are divers preparations being made for his coming. My grandfather walks restlessly up and down the yard, with his stout stick, peering anxiously up the roadway, by which our traveler must come.

"Uncle Nathaniel says, with pride, 'The boy will have many stories to tell.' Aunt Content flits about the house with a smile upon her face, and anon tears in her eyes, concocting some favorite dishes of which her son used to be fond, while dear old grandmother knits and knits, because she says 'Than-el never yet wore any stockings but of my make, and I must have a supply for him to take on his next voyage.' I, even I, am to have a new blue gown made from Aunt's last web, which is the finest and softest piece of flannel ever made on the Island. * *

"My cousin has come. He is tall and lithe with handsome hair and eyes, but his complexion is bronzed by ocean winds and eastern suns. He says it seems to him like a fairy tale, that I was the same little dumpling of a cousin he used to toss in the air, when he was last at home. He is much grieved to find you all gone, and is planning a hunting expedition, whose objective point shall be your far away settlement.

"The neighbors all congregated around our kitchen fire to hear his wonderful stories and adventures, which he was relating all day and far into the night. For all he has traveled almost over the whole world, he is as pleased as a little boy to be at home, on the dear old Nantucket plantation again. We are all happy as we can be, with our divided hearts. We all have a frequent thought and wish for our wanderers, and grandfather remembers you each morning and evening at the throne of grace. * * * *

"My cousin has brought a great many curiosities and presents for us all; one is a silken creamy shawl for me, woven and embroidered with beautiful flowers. Another is a gown of foamy Canton crape, as white as snow; they are so pretty I am sure I shall never dare to wear them. Grandma says, they shall be kept for my wedding day, but Aunt Esther says, it is not seemly for such thoughts to be put into a maiden's head. Yet Aunt Content gave me the other day a whole piece of linen from the fall bleach 'to be kept' said she 'for a day of need.' At all events, my foreign finery is packed away in a foreign box, and is not likely to turn any silly maiden's brain at present. * * *

"Cousin has returned to Boston, and yesterday he sent by a trusty messenger another sea chest, in it is a large box of tea, the first that was ever seen on the island, real Chinese tea which Nat himself procured in China. It is of a greenish color, with little shriveled leaves, and when eaten dry, has a pleasant spicy taste. Perhaps, when I have an opportunity to send this letter I can enclose a sample quantity, that you may see what it is like. He has sent by the same hand, a letter saying when he returns to Nantucket, the owner of the ship in which he voyaged, Captain Morris, will come with him from Boston to pay us a visit. We are again making master preparations for visitors, and if you will believe it, the large parlor which has not been used since Aunt Mehitable's wedding, is to be open, the floor has been newly waxed and polished and we have spread down here and there, beautiful mats and rugs which Cousin Nat brought from foreign parts, with the many curious and handsome things which are hung on the wall, and spread on the table and mantlepiece, and the huge fire of logs which the sharp weather now renders necessary in the chimney, you have no true conception how finely the room appears. When I was admiring it this morning, Aunt Esther rebuked me gravely, saying: 'The bright things of this world are of short duration,' but dear, gentle grandma observed with a smile, that it was 'natural and right for the young to admire beauty,' at which Aunt Esther seemed displeased. I sometimes think she dislikes me because I am young, but that cannot be; yet I cannot quite understand how being my own sweet Mother's sister, she can be so unlike her. * * *

"We have just had tidings that Cousin Nat and his friend Capt. Morris intend to arrive here on the 31st of December.

Uncle Nathaniel says, we will have a tea party, and invite Lieutenant Macey's family and Uncle Edward Starbuck's family, and a few others to meet our distinguished guests, and to 'sit the old year out and the new year in.'

* * * * * * * * * * * *

"We cooked a bountiful dinner, and our guests all came. I wore my new blue gown with some lace that grandma gave me in the neck, and my own dear Mother's gold necklace. I tied back my curls, which Coz. Nat. will not allow me to braid, with blue ribbon, which he bought in London. Aunt Esther said men dislike to see girls so brave, but grandpa kissed me, calling me a 'bonnie blue bell.' Aunt Content has been much pestered in her mind, because she knew not how to cook and serve tea, and after our neighbors had assembled, she confided to them her perplexity. They all gathered about the tea chest, smelling and tasting the fragrant herb. Mrs. Lieutenant Macey said she had heard it ought to be well cooked to be palatable, and Aunt Edward Starbuck said a lady in Boston, who had drank tea, told her it needed a good quantity for a steeping, which was the reason it was so expensive. So Aunt Content hung the bright five-gallon bell-metal kettle on the crane, and putting a two quart bowl full of tea in it with plenty of water, swung it over the fire, Aunt Esther and Lydia Ann Macey stayed in the kitchen to keep it boiling.

"While I was laying the table I heard Lydia Ann say, 'I have heard that when tea is drank, it gives a brilliancy to the eyes, and a youthful freshness to the complexion, I am fearful that thy sister-in-law failed to put in a sufficient quantity of the leaves.' So Aunt Esther put another bowl full of the tea into the bell-metal kettle. When the tea had boiled about an hour my Cousin and Capt. Morris arrived. The tea which had boiled down to about a gallon was poured into grandma's large silver tankard and carried to the table, and each guest was provided with one of her silver porringers, also with cream and lumps of sugar. The Captain talked with me before dinner, and I told him, before I knew that I was getting confidential, how you were all off in the wilds. He said enterprise was what the new country needed, and that it was not best to have Nantucket peopled entirely with Starbucks—that I was one of the old stock it was plain to be seen, if my name was Wentworth, and he looked pleasantly around the circle of Starbucks. I suppose I do resemble them all. I saw Aunt Esther looking at me so sharply, that I remembered she had often told me, that it was not seemly for me to talk with men, and I presently became discreetly silent. But when dinner was announced, the Captain took me out and made me sit by him.

"After Grandma had asked a blessing on the food, Aunt Content said to her son and his friend, 'I have made a dish of tea for you, but am fearful that I have not prepared it as hath need, and would like to have your own opinion.' Whereupon my cousin and the Captain looked and sniffed at the tea, and my cousin made answer, 'As my loved Mother desired my opinion, I must needs tell her, that a spoonfull of this beverage, which she has with such hospitable intent prepared for us, would nearly kill any one of us here at the table.'

"The Captain then said laughingly, that Aunt could keep the decoction for a dye to color woolens. He further said that he would, if she so desired, instruct her how to draw the tea herself. 'And this young lady,' he continued, turning to me, 'shall make the first dish of the beverage used in Nantucket.' Dinner being over, they all remained at the table, except Captain Morris and myself, (for Aunt Content bad me to assist him, as he should direct), and we searched for a suitable vessel wherein to draw the tea. At last I saw Uncle Nathaniel's large gray stone pitcher, into which, our guest instructed me to put as much of the tea as I could hold between my thumb and fore finger for each person, and an additional pinch for the pitcher.

"Then he told me to pour upon it, boiling water sufficient for us all, and set the pitcher on the coals, and let it remain until it came to a gentle boil.

"The tea was then poured into the tankard which Aunt Content had made ready, and the Captain carried it to the table for me, and helped me to pour it into the porringers for the guests. He was so kind as to say, it was the best dish of tea he ever drank. We had a wholesome dinner, and an enjoyable one withal.

"Cousin Nat. told stories and sang songs, in which latter recreation Capt. Morris joined, and the happy New Year's greeting took the place of good-byes, when our neighbors left for their respective homes.

"My Cousin's friend still lingers for the shooting, and there is not much spinning or weaving done, it takes so much time for the cooking and the eating and the visiting. He is very agreeable, and calls Grandfather the 'Miles Standish of Nantucket.'

"I heard him tell Uncle Nathaniel, that we had good blood, and that ever since he became acquainted with Cousin Nat. he had conceived a great admiration for the Nathaniel Starbucks, and he said something about a wife. Perhaps he remains here so long on Aunt Esther's account, but, dear me, she is so prim (I write with all respect, dear Mother,) and he is such a jovial gentleman, I do not understand how such a union could be harmonious. If he has regard for her, it must be on account of the Starbuck blood.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

"Oh, my mother, how can I tell you? It is not for the love of Aunt Esther that Captain Morris remains, but me, your own little daughter, and all the Starbucks, indeed, saving Aunt Esther, who declares with quiet wrath that I ought to be put back into pinafores, have given their consent that I shall be married, and sail away with my husband in my husband's ship, to foreign parts, to see for myself all the beautiful and wonderful things, of which I have heard so much of late. But I will not give my consent, until I have that of my father and mother first, so there is a company being made up, to go with Cousin Nathaniel and the Captain, through the winter snows to your far away home. And so, after all, it will be this new friend of whom I have written so much, who will take this long letter to you.

"I am sure, dear Mother, that you who know my heart so well, will not think it unseemly for me, that the Lord will guide your heart and that of my father, to feel kindly disposed toward this gentleman, for indeed he is of good repute, and is so good as to be very fond of me, and I feel, that if I have your consent and that of my honored father, together with your blessing, I shall be very happy, and take an honest pride in being his honored wife.

"The Captain declares, laughingly, that I am sending him off on a quest, like a knight of old, to prove his love. I cannot help thinking it strange, his wanting to marry me, and when I said so one day, he replied, gravely, that it was all on account of the tea, that got into his head.

"And indeed it may be so, for I was flighty and hardly closed my eyes to sleep at all the night after partaking of it, and even dear Grandmother says, she would not answer for the consequence of what she might be led to do, were she to make use of it every day. I send along with other small articles, a quantity of this famous tea, and a bit of the white crape that I shall, if so it seemeth best in the judgment of my honored father and mother, wear in good time, as a wedding gown.

The household all join with me in sending loving greetings to you all.

"I remain now and ever, your dutiful daughter,

"Ruth Starbuck Wentworth."

MORRIS.

The name of Morris is known under various orthographies to most European nations, among others occur Morys, Morrys, Moris, Morris, Morice, Morrice, Moryce, Maurice, Mawrice, Moores, Morrish, etc. As to the origin of the name many opinions have been advanced.

Burke in his "History of the Landed Gentry of England," says in regard to the name of Morys or Morris, "This name originally spelled Mawr-rhyce or Mawr-rhys, was changed into Maurice, Morrice, and Morris, Mars, Mavors. The Welsh 'Mawr-rwyce'—meaning in English 'warlike' or 'powerful,' was a title applied to such of the ancient chieftains as were pre-eminent for valor, whose numerous descendants account for the present frequency of the name in Wales."

Other authorities say the name is derived from "Mawr," great or brave, and "Rhys," "Rwyce," "Rees," or "Rice," a title given to the ancient chief, so that the meaning of the name is "great" or "brave," "chief" or "prince." This, they consider, was probably the meaning, as the various knighted families of England bearing the name of Morris trace their ancestry to such an origin, going back to a remote period. The Morrises of Warrington and Betshanger, it is said, trace their ancestry to Brut, the first King of Britain, one hundred years before the Christian era. They have for their motto—"Antiqui Mores."

The name of Morris, according to Mark Anthony Lower, is derived from two names: one of native Welsh origin; the other coming from the continent of Europe. It is compounded with various initial expressions, as De Mont, Fitz, Clan, etc. He says that when the latter occur, attached to Maurice, they are generally considered Continental or Moorish.

From a series of papers upon Norman surnames in Wales, which have recently appeared from the scholarly pen of T. S. Morris, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, London, we quote the following:—

"The surname Morris and its variants are full of difficulty. The authorities on surnames, appear to be hopelessly disagreed as to the true source or sources of the name. Some writers assert, that the surname is a common form, evolved from more derivations than one, whilst others contend, that the surname, in whatever form it may be written, has a particular origin. We will now place before the reader the various opinions held by different writers on the subject.

"It would appear that Morris is most commonly derived through the French, Maurice, from the Latin, Maurus, 'a Moor.' Miss Yonge and others give this derivation. The form Morrice is derived in Cassell's Library of English Literature (Morley), Vol. i., p. 246, from the English adjective 'Moorish,' but as no proof of such an English derivation is given, we may conclude that this is merely a conjecture of the writer. Professor Skeat of Cambridge, contributed the following note, bearing on the subject, to 'Notes and Queries' in August, 1867, (see 3rd Series, Vol. xii., p. 149):—In Strutt's 'Sports and Pastimes, Vol. i., p. 223, ed. Hone, 1834, is the following:—'The word Morris, applied to the dance, is usually derived from Morisco, which, in the Spanish language, signifies a Moor, as if the dance had been taken from the Moors; but I can not help considering this as a mistake. * * * I shall not pretend to investigate the meaning of the word Morris; though probably it might be found at home. Can any one tell what Strutt was probably thinking of, or what other derivate there is of Morris?' Cotgrave says, 'A morris-dance, Morisque.' * * * Most likely morris (a dance) was substituted for merelles as being better understood. A Morris-pike is a Moorish pike.' It will be seen that Professor Skeat does not confuse the word morris in morris-dance with the name Morris. We merely reproduce his note because some writers maintain that the word and the name come from a common source. Lower states in his 'Essays on Family Nomenclature,' (1844), see p. 61, with reference to the surname Morris, that it was 'a well-known fact that the particular species of salutation, called the morrice-dance, and several branches of magic lore, were introduced into these regions many centuries since by natives of Morocco.'

"A second derivation of the surname is suggested by another contributor to 'Notes and Queries' in September, 1867 (see 3rd Series, Vol. xii., p. 254), who writes as follows: 'I should like to derive this 'surname' from our En[illegible] moor. At one time England must have been abo[illegible] half moorland and half forest; both have left a numerous family of patronymics, ranging from Fores to Forester on the one hand, and More to Morrison on the other. In London we had a Moor-gate, opening directly on to the great northern moors, now all built over; and I think that those outcasts, as we may call them, who in early times inhabited these moors, would be called 'Moorishers,' those people who live on the moors; hence we have Morrish, Morris, and finally More; the form Morris, being adopted as a baptismal name, begets Morrison. I have no wish to deprive any gentleman of his favourite Moor's head, couped sable, with the accompanying legend, but this can not affect all of the name.'

"A third explanation of the surname given is, that it comes from Amalric, derived from the Teutonic, himmel-reich, 'the kingdom of heaven.' Another writer on surnames renders the meaning of 'Amalric in France, Almerick in England,' as 'work ruler.' A frequent contributor of notes on surnames to 'Notes and Queries' would have us all believe that 'Maurice has nothing to do with Mauritius, or a Moor, but comes from Amalric.'

"Charnock, in his 'Prænomina,' page 82, suggests that the French form, Maurice, is derived from the French, du marais, 'from the marsh.' We reproduce his note on the name, which is to this effect:—'Maurice. Some derive this from Amalrick, others from Mauritius; but it is rather the reverse, for the Island had its name from Prince Maurice. Menage, in his 'Table des nom de Saints,' writes 'Morge, Moris, Mauritius, and in the Vocab. Hagiol, he has Mauritius, S. Maurice, nomme S. Morge, en quelques endroits de Lyon.' The name is probably from the French, Du marais, 'from the marsh!'

"The Rev. Henry Barber, in his 'British Family Names,' (1894), derives Morris from the French personal names, Maurice and Morisse. He states that the form Morreis is found in the Roll of Battell Abbey, and it appears that the names Mauric and Mauritaniensis occur among the tenants in chief mentioned in the Domesday Book. We have been informed by the Rev. Henry Barber that the name Mauricus occurs frequently in the 'Rotuli de Oblatis et Finibus' (King John), and it appears therefrom that one 'Radulphus de Moris lived in Devon in the year 1207. Mr. Barber concludes that the form "de Moris" proves it to be a place name. He suggests it might come from a local name, such as Marais, or that there might be a village and monastery of St. Maurice, such as gave rise to the names of St. Clair and St. John, and it would appear from 'The Norman People' that Maurice comes from St. Maurice in Normandy. No further suggestion is given as to the origin of the name of the saint. The quotation given above by Charnock from Menage, shows that such a name as was suggested by the Rev. Henry Barber is to be found in France, and it may possibly be connected with marais, the French for 'marsh.'

"Burke states that there are two classes of English families bearing the surname Morris, 'those who came over with the Conqueror and those derived from Wales." He further explains that 'Mars or Mavors (god of war), Mawr-rwyce' (correctly Mawr rwysg), i. e., 'warlike,' 'powerful,' is a title applied to such of the ancient chieftains as were pre-eminent for valour, whose numerous descendants account for the present frequency of the name in Wales. To this, one of the mottoes borne by the family of Morris, seems to have reference; 'Marte et mari faventibus.' (See Burke's 'Commoners,' Vol. iv., p. 488). A contributor to the 'Archæologia Cambrensis' (Vol. xlv.) also derives Morris from mawr rhwysg, 'of great sway,' or mor rhys, 'eager for the sea,' and adds that the motto quoted above, borne by Morris of York, 'seems to have a reference to the etymological meaning of the family name.' We cannot accept either of these derivations, which, if not almost impossible, are, at any rate, most improbable; nor can we admit that the surname Morris or its variants are of Welsh origin. The statement made by Burke as to the 'ancient chieftains and their descendants' cannot be supported by evidence, and there does not appear to be any connection between the name Morris and the motto referred to. Mawr rwysg is certainly not 'the Welsh form of Mavors (Mars), the god of war,' as stated by Lower in his 'English Surnames' (1875), see Vol. i., p. 55.

"We believe that the surnames Morris, etc., found in Wales are Norman, being identical with Maurice, and that these names were introduced by the Norman invaders and during the Crusades. The name Morris does not occur once in the Red Book of Hergest, although the more ancient form, Meuruc, occurs in the Historia Regum Brittaniae ('Ystorya Brenhined y Brytanyeit.') Morris is not even mentioned in the Iolo MSS., nor are we aware that the name occurs in any of our most ancient manuscripts. We are of opinion, that the origin of Maurice or Morris is to be found either in the French, marais, 'a marsh,' or in the Latin, Maurus, 'a Moor,' or Maurusius, 'Moorish.' Mauricius appears to have been a Roman personal name, derived from Maurus, which, during the Roman occupation of Britain, was adopted by the Britons (with a large number of other Latin names) and assumed the forms Mauric or Meuric. We believe that Maurice comes directly from Mauricius, although the name may also have been evolved, quite independently, from marais, just as it is possible that the Scotch surnames, Morris, Moore, &c., might be traced to sources other than Maurus, Mauricius, or marais. If Mauricius be the origin of both Meyrick and Morris, it would appear that the Britons pronounced the letter c in the original name hard, whereas the Gauls softened it.

"The Welsh form, Morys, Morus, &c., occur repeatedly in Welsh pedigrees and in Welsh manuscripts of subsequent date to the subjugation of Wales (1282). The form 'Morys' occurs at least twice in the 'Record of Carnarvon.' One 'Morys' lived at 'Brythtyr' (Brithdir), near Dolgelley, in 1576. We find the names of 'Mauricius Tudye de Denbye' and 'Mauricius ap Evan' among the Welsh pilgrims to Rome in 1506. Dafydd ap Ithel ap Morris Mawre was a burgess of Dinas Mawddwy in 1391. William Morris was abbot of Strata Florida in 1443. James Morris of Cardigan was sheriff of Cardiganshire in 1554, and James Morris of Auston, Co. Salop was sheriff of Cardiganshire in 1565. Rees ap Morris ap Owen was sheriff of Montgomeryshire in 1565, and William Morrice ap Ellis of Clenneney was sheriff of Carnarvonshire in 1590. Cadwaladr ap David ap Johes ap Hugh ap 'Mores' was bailiff of Llanfyllin in 1582, 'Moricus ap Hoel ap Moris' was 'maior of Caersous' (Mayor of Caersws) in 1584, and 'Moricius ap Jeun ap David ap Hoel' of 'Llanwonoge' served on the Grand Jury of his county in 1582. Some early Welsh bards have borne the name Morris, Morus Morganwg, a rhetorician and poet, was alive in 1220; Morus ap Hywel ap Cadwaladr flourished about 1490–1520, and Morus Gethin lived between 1470 and 1570. Sir Lewis Morris, our modern poet, appears to have eclipsed all the Morrisian bards, including Hugh Morris, and his worthy ancestor, Lewis Morris, otherwise Lewis Ddu o Fon. He has won a reputation which we, in Wales, thoroughly appreciate. From a perusal of Lewis Dwnn's 'Heraldic Visitations of Wales' it would appear that 'Morys' was a popular name in Carnarvonshire families about the beginning of the 17th century. It may be interesting to state that Morus is an epithet applied by the Welsh people to the wind, and it has been suggested that this epithet had its origin in Boreas, 'the north wind.' This suggestion appears to be a possible one, but it must not, however, be assumed that the surname Morris is likewise derived from the Latin Boreas. We believe such an assumption would be inaccurate and could only be based on pure conjecture.

"We have known Welshmen, who have been careful to point out that their surname is more uncommon than another common surname similar in sound, but spelt differently, and they have evidently been proud of this trifling distinction, a distinction which did not altogether arise at a seat of learning. Such instances are Harries or Harrys instead of Harris; Morrish or Morrice instead of Morris, &c. Innumerable instances of different renderings of the same name appear in old lists. One instance taken from the Register of the University of Oxford will suffice. The 'Rhys Lewis Davids' whose name appears in the list of those who graduated in 1582, is identical with 'Rice Lewys Davis,' included among the names in a matriculation list of earlier date."

ANTHONY.

Miss Charlotte Yonge, in her "History of Christian Names," (p. 141) thus writes of the name Antonius:—

"Two gentes were called Antonius, a word that it is not easy to trace. Some explain it as 'inestimable,' but the Triumvir, himself chose to deduce it from Antius, a son of Hercules. One of these clans was patrician, with the cognomen Merenda; the other plebeian, without any third name, and it was to the latter, that the avenger of Cæsar, and lover of Cleopatra, belonged—Mark Anthony, Marc Antoine, or Marcantonio, as modern tongues have clipped Marcus Antonius. The clipping had, however, been already performed, before the resuscitation of his evil fame in the fifteenth century, for both his names had become separately saintly, and therefore mutilated; Mark in the person of the Evangelist, Antonius in that of the great hermit of the fourth century—the first to practise the asceticism which resulted in the monastic system of Egyptian birth, his devotions, his privations, and his conflicts with Satan, were equally admired in the Eastern and Western Churches, and Antonios has been as common among the Greeks, as Antonius among the Latin Christians."

"St. Anthony was already very popular, when St. Antonio of Padua further increased the Italian devotion to the name, and Antonio has ever since been exceedingly common in Italy and Spain. Classical pedantry made Antonio Palcario turn it into Aonio, in honor of the Aonian choir; but whatever he chose to call himself, he made glorious by his life and death.

"The Dutch seem to have needlessly added the silent h, and we probably learned it from them. The popularity of Anthony has much diminished since the Reformation in England, where perhaps it is less used than in any other country."

APPENDIX.

In the pursuance of his investigations with reference to the Morris Ancestry in England, the author has recently discovered the recorded Will of Anthony Morrys, "Mercer," who flourished in the city of London in the Sixteenth Century; and although further research will be needed, to trace his probable connection with the Anthony Morris family which has been under consideration in this work, an Abstract of his Will may be appropriately inserted here, especially as it refers to facts of historical interest.

Will proved 1582. Ffebruarij xxii.

The foregoing "Abstract" suggests to us the picture of a prosperous "Mercer" of the Elizabethan period, who had his residence and place of business in the parish of Allhallows, near the Royal Exchange in the city of London. This was the quarter occupied by the "Mercers"—a term then almost synonymous with that of "Merchants," some of whom became merchant princes, trading extensively with foreign countries.

Anthony Morrys was equal partner with Mr. Warcopp (or Warcup) in a loan to the King of France, the amount of which is specified in the Will. It represents a considerable sum, considering the times. The King of France referred to was doubtless King Henry III., who needed money to carry on his wars. The English (Foreign) State papers (Elizabeth, 1575–77) make reference to the Warcup loan.

Dr. Dale wrote to Lord Burleigh from Paris, Aug. 15, 1575: "Pinart has sent word that he will pay Warcup and Nutshawe, if they will send their writings." (Calendar, p. 88.)

On Nov. 10, 1575, Dr. Dale wrote to Lord Burleigh: "With much travail Nutshawe is appointed his payment. Warcup is put over, as it were, and yet near 20,000 francs appointed for contentment of them both, and one sent for to Angers, who has attended here for no other purpose but to pay it." (Calendar, p. 178.)

On 15th April, 1576, Dr. Dale wrote to Lord Burleigh that he "Sends Warcup's man home also with letters to the Lords of the Council, and with copies of all such writings as have passed in this matter, whereby it well appears what promises have been made, and what diligence used."

By the courtesy of John Waters, Esq., of the Mercer's Company, London, the author has been informed that Anthony Morrys was apprenticed to Henry Saxcie, and was admitted to the Freedom of the Mercer's Company in 1558. As he must have attained his majority before becoming a member of the Company, Anthony Morrys was probably born circa 1536 or 1537. He appears to have had a country house and farm in Knightsbridge, which is in the Parish of St. Margaret's, Westminster. According to the Registers of that Parish, Anthony Morrys was buried 3rd September, 1582. At the time Anthony Morrys executed his Will, his son Henry was "in Ffraunce," where, we may suppose, he was attending to his father's interests in connection with the loan, and other business. Henry Morrys, we are informed, was admitted a member of the Mercer's Company in 1594.

One is strongly impressed with the fact, that both Anthony Morrys, "Mercer," and Anthony Morris,[1] Mariner, were engaged in mercantile ventures in foreign parts, and both probably traded in their own vessels.
